EUBANKS JOINS ATTACK ON JAMES

Sutton Defends Curricula of Atlanta System and Blames Failures on Text.

Branding as an apparently "malicious falsehood, not worth a whoop" the audit of 1926 accounts of the Atlanta board of education, members of the board Tuesday at a meeting of the board, which was held at the home of William H. James, auditor, and W. D. Hoffman, chairman of the current expenditures committee of that body, declaring he would not approve a $3,400 bill rendered for the service.

He was joined in his attack on the author of the audit by Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board, and Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools. Mr. Hoffman's criticism was based on a story of the audit, which was carried Tuesday in The Constitution.

"If Mr. James is quoted correctly in this story, he is not fit to make an audit," Mr. Hoffman charged. "We didn't hire him to make an educational survey of Atlanta's schools. We engaged him to make a statistical audit of accounts. He is not an educator and doesn't know enough about educational problems to make an intelligent survey. The board justly rejects his assertions and insinuations."

Treatment Undeserved.

"We do not deserve this kind of treatment, and it seems that the entire audit, if he is quoted correctly, is a political move intended to incite citizens against the board without justification. I can not approve his bill for $3,400 and will not offer it to the board at this time."

Dr. Eubanks reiterated the assertion that the board of education wanted an impartial audit of accounts instead of "an educational survey, which I feel Mr. James and his firm are incompetent to make."

"We were perfectly willing and even anxious to have the audit made and tried to cooperate in every way possible with members of Mr. James' firm in obtaining detailed reports," Mr. Sutton said. He repeated what he called the educational survey.

Mr. Sutton then went into a detailed defense of the curricula of Atlanta's schools and the scholarship records of students. He declared that the mathematics failures at Tech High school are bad, but pointed out that the failure in spelling at Commercial High school, which also came in for criticism in the audit, were made in a "Simmons test," a text book not used in Commercial High school, but one which deals with words "frequently misspelled." His position was substantiated in a communication from

Coolidge Expects Chinese To Yield To Allied Demands

For This Reason America Has Not Considered Steps To Be Taken in Case of Refusal.

GENERAL STRIKE CALLED BY UNIONS

Radicals and Moderates in Cantonese Forces in Battle. Marines To Sail April 20.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, April 12.—President Coolidge has every expectation that the nationalist government will comply satisfactorily with the demands for redress submitted by the powers yesterday in connection with the Nanking outrages, it was stated in his behalf here today.

For that reason it was asserted at the white house, the United States has not given any consideration to the question of what will be done to enforce the demands if they are disregarded by the Cantonese authorities.

Except for the confidence expressed at the white house, there was no other apparent reaction in official circles to the Nanking incident. It is apparent that officials here are content for the moment to simply mark time while the demands for apology, reparation and future guarantees for the protection of foreigners are being studied by the Chinese.

Marines Sail April 20.

While there is no new indication that the United States plans to resort to the use of troops in case the Nanking demands are spurned naval authorities today continued their preparations to send reinforcements to Admiral Williams, commander-in-chief of American forces in China. Secretary of the Navy Willbur announced that the last contingent of 1,500 marines now being concentrated at San Diego will sail for the Philippine Islands on April 20. He added that it was possible that Admiral Williams will ask that they be diverted to either Shanghai or Tientsin before they reach that destination. It is expected that the marines will be forwarded to China at once.

By its action yesterday, the United States associated itself with other powers in opposition to the communist-inspired anti-foreign agitation and for that reason Washington officials are watching developments in the split between the radicals and moderates in the nationalist party with unusual interest. It is believed that victory for the moderates would mean quick compliance with the Nanking demands and a marked decrease in the anti-foreign agitation now inflaming China.

Just how far the powers will go in combating the spread of anti-foreignism through communist agitators, is not clear, but developments at Amoy and Foochow indicate that concerted efforts are being made to stamp it out wherever possible.

A dispatch from Admiral Williams made public by Secretary of the Navy Willbur states that local naval authorities at Foochow and Amoy are co-operating in forbidding the radicals to allow the landing of members of the Kuomintang party. This was interpreted here as meaning that the naval powers at those points were forbidding demonstrations by radicals and anti-

ALLEGED SIGNERS PROTEST PETITION OF LOAN BROKERS

Several Deny They Signed Petition Seeking To Restrain War on High Money Rates.

BY HERB McCUSKER.

Declaring that some of their names as "petitioners" in a temporary injunction restraining the Atlanta Legal Aid society from alleged circulation of pamphlets attacking certain loan brokers had been made without authorization and that they "never knew anything about the injunction" until it was reported in newspapers, a number of Atlantans Tuesday made affidavits to that effect and prepared to launch protests against making permanent the injunction which was temporarily imposed by Judge Virlyn B. Moore in Fulton superior court.

The petition upon which Judge Moore granted the temporary injunction claimed that circulars distributed by the Legal Aid society, the Negro Business League and the Atlanta Urban League were "injurious" and tended to "stir up fictitious law suits against 70 loan brokers." Then followed a long list of alleged petitioners, many of whom were not named. They are not "loan brokers" but actually are persons who have waged legal tilts against a number of loan brokers.

Deny Aiding Petitioners.

Many of these alleged petitioners telephoned and called in person at the office of the Legal Aid society Tuesday, declaring that the use of their names in obtaining the injunction was made without their permission and that had permission been asked, it would have been withheld.

"This bold stroke was taken by loan sharks in order to offset the revelations of the past week," J. L. R. Boyd, counsel for the Legal Aid society, declared.

"There is actually only one real loan broker's name on that superfluous petition—and that is the name of P. P. Jackson, who himself has been sued by at least one other person whose name was included on the list of petitioners," he said.

"J. K. Fulwiler, whose name appeared on the petition as one of the alleged taxpayers and citizens protesting against the attack on loan sharks, declared he knew nothing whatsoever of any petition," Mr. Boyd said.

"I sued a loan firm and got judgment but was put to expense of almost $150 in beating them when they carried the case to the supreme court," Fulwiler declared. "They had a lot of nerve using my name. I didn't know anything about it."

Borrower Bares Details.

An affidavit produced by Attorney Boyd of the Legal Aid society, signed by one of the so-called petitioners, stated that the signer was a "victim of the loan sharks for three or four years" and that he had borrowed $25 some time ago, had paid $800 on the original loan and still owed $25, the sum originally borrowed.

In the affidavit the maker declared

SINGLE SEAT SALE ASSURES SUCCESS OF GRAND OPERA

Demand So Great on Second Day of Individual Performance Sale No Check Made.

Hundreds of Atlanta patrons of grand opera thronged through the ticket office at 84 North Broad street again Tuesday, the second day of sale for tickets to individual performances, and another long line is expected to be waiting when ticket windows open this morning.

So great has been the demand for tickets that officials of the Atlanta Music Festival association have been unable thus far to check up on the number sold. Both on Monday and Tuesday the ticket windows were kept open long after the scheduled time for closing to accommodate as many patrons as possible.

Demand for tickets on the first two days of the sale of single seats has been so great that officials of the association are assured that the 1927 season of grand opera in Atlanta will be by far the most successful in its entire history, it was announced.

Sale Is Expedited.

In several instances during the sale of tickets Tuesday one person bought several tickets for various operas, having been delegated by a group to buy all of the tickets. This expedited the work of ticket sellers as well as saved those waiting in line much time.

Patrons continued to treat all operas with like favor. The general sale of tickets indicated. Although no check was available of the number of tickets sold for various performances it appeared that all were about equal after the two days of furious selling. "La Traviata," on the opening night, appeared to be a favorite and many tickets also were sold for "Turandot" and "Mignon."

Atlanta patrons again were asked Tuesday not to mail orders to the Cable Piano company, but to come in person and select their seats from the chart of the diagram in the offices. Many mail orders were received Monday from Atlanta patrons and C. Howard Chandler, vice president and treasurer of the Music Festival association, issued a statement in which he asked that all Atlantans wishing to obtain tickets, come to the ticket office at 84 North Broad street.

Ambitious List of Plays.

The list of performances for the 1927 season is the most ambitious in the 17 years' history of grand opera in Atlanta. There will be eight performances, one double bill. The complete program for the season is: Monday night, "La Traviata"; Tuesday night, "Gianni Schicchi"; Wednesday night, "Turandot"; Thursday night, "Mignon"; Friday matinee, "Lohengrin"; Friday night, "The Forest of Arden"; Saturday matinee, "Romeo and Juliet"; and Saturday night, "Maiden Buttery."

Following is the scale of prices for single performances: Boxes seating six, $55; boxes seating four, $37; arena, $7 to $5.50; dress circle, $6.50 to $3.50; balcony, $1.25 to $0.50.

38-STORY HOTEL IN GOTHAM BURNS

Crowd of 50,000 Witnesses Conflagration—Blazing Scaffolding Crushes Building.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, April 12.—More than a hundred terror-stricken tenants fled the upper floors of a fashionable apartment hotel at 14 East 60th street tonight when ten floors of blazing scaffolding from the upper stories of the adjoining 38-story New Netherlands hotel, in course of construction at the northeast corner of 59th street and Fifth avenue, cascaded on the roof of the smaller building, setting it afire.

The collapse came after the upper stories of the New Netherlands, located in the heart of Fifth avenue's exclusive residential area, had been flaming like a huge torch for more than two hours.

Chaf Roof Fired.

The avalanche of blazing timbers fired not only the roof of the hotel at 14 East 60th street, but also the roof of the Metropolitan club at 60th street and Fifth avenue.

Because of the continuous shower of sparks and blazing timbers into the streets for blocks around the burning tower, police halted the fleeing crowd.

FEW RESIDENTS OF TOWN ESCAPE DEATH OR INJURY

Lineman Climbs Pole, "Taps" Wire and Sends Word of Devastation at Rock Springs.

DOCTORS, NURSES RUSHED TO SCENE

Tornadoes Also Spread Ruin in Oklahoma and Arkansas, Taking Toll of Dead.

Houston, Texas, April 12.—(AP)—Between 150 and 200 persons were killed and hundreds injured tonight when a tornado laid waste to virtually the entire town of Rock Springs, Texas, railway dispatches received here reported.

Because the town is isolated, without either railroad or telegraph communication, and because every available telephone was being used in calls for relief from the stricken area, only scanty details of the disaster could be obtained here.

Clearest accounts, given by a line-man who walked through the devastated district to the nearest telegraph line, climbed a pole and "tapped" the wire, thus getting communication with Southern Pacific railroad dispatcher at Del Rio, said that the tornado slanted the town flat as though by a giant's hand.

Few Residents Escape.

This report, relayed to Houston railway office, said that few residents of the town escaped death or injury, and that the suffering of the injured, without means of relief, almost surpasses description.

The call of Del Rio urged that all available doctors and nurses, with huge quantities of medical supplies, be recruited at once and started in automobiles for the storm center.

Meanwhile, according to word from Del Rio, the wind was growing in intensity there, and residents feared that that city also might feel the force of the same storm.

Rock Springs is an inland town of 800 population without a railroad, about 90 miles northeast of Del Rio and 70 from Kerrville.

SAN ANTONIO HEARS 125 ARE VICTIMS.

San Antonio, Texas, April 12.—(AP) More than 125 persons were reported to have lost their lives in a tornado that struck the little town of Rock Springs, county seat of Edwards county, located 124 miles west of San Antonio, at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Information concerning the disaster reached here over an improvised telephone established one mile east of the town.

The first message received in San Antonio told of the death of 126 persons, with many injured.

Dead List May Mount.

Truth Quest Gets Blame For Suicides

Modern Student Frankly Questioning, Speaker Tells P. T. A. at Macon.

Macon, Ga., April 12.—(AP)—Student suicides are the result of honest questioning on the part of the youth, a groping for the truth without finding an answer. Eugene T. Lies, Chicago, special representative of the playground and recreation association of America, declared in an address Tuesday night marking the formal opening of the fourteenth annual convention of the Georgia Parent-Teacher association.

There were 300 delegates and many visitors in attendance. Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, state president, presided.

Mr. Lies' subject was the "challenge of youth." He made a plea for more sympathetic understanding of youth and the realization of greater responsibility on the part of the parents.

"In the last 40 years, more new things have come into the lives of people than during the previous 2500 years," he said. "These stimuli call for responses."

"After-war restlessness, jazz, a strenuous type of living, crime tendencies, complexity of life, the immensely larger, leisure of our time, the pressure of commercialized amusements, the congestion of urban populations—these are vitally affecting us, but especially our impressionable youth, and we worry over the tendencies of youth today, but worry and tears will not solve our problem."

"The great call of the hour seems to be for a new type of adult, understanding the modern youth's relations to these conditions," he said.

In her annual address Mrs. Jeter outlined the purposes of the Parent-Teacher association.

Reports of state officers were presented.

EDUCATORS TO LEAVE FOR MACON MEETING.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, and scores of Atlanta teachers will leave the city Thursday to attend the annual meeting of the Georgia Educational association at Macon. Mr. Sutton told the board Tuesday that under the state laws teachers are not permitted to lose time for attendance at this convention, and that many from Atlanta schools plan to attend.

Where more than 50 per cent of the teachers from any one school leaves from the convention, the school will be closed, and students of that institution will get a holiday Friday. The remaining teachers will be transferred to other schools to teach classes there. Mr. Sutton pointed out, thus keeping as many schools as possible in operation.

Fliers Sail Into Night To Set World Record

PILOTS CONFIDENT THEY WILL WIN

Garden City, N. Y., April 12.—(United News.)—Bert Acosta and Clarence E. Chamberlain sailed into the first night of their attempt to set a new world record for sustained flight with every indication that all was well aboard their big Bellanca monoplane.

At 9:30 p. m. the pilots had been in the air 12 hours.

At this hour they were circling the aviation field, keeping within range of the big guide lights below. Each time they swing around near the observation stand their motor could be heard firing with perfect rhythm.

At 5 p. m. Tuesday they had been aloft for one-half of their 50-hour goal, moving in wide circles over Roosevelt field with occasional side flights over Brooklyn and Manhattan.

The two civilian pilots seemed confident when they took off from Roosevelt field at 4:30 a. m. that they would shatter the record for 45 hours 11 minutes and 30 seconds established by the French army lieutenants, Droughin and Landry.

Officials of the National Aeronautics association, timers of the flight, kept their field glasses on the plane throughout the day. One time when the aviators flew low over the field it was noted that their motor was hitting perfectly.

"Seven hours and all is well," said a message dropped from the plane at 4:30 p. m. as it swooped down to an altitude of about 500 feet. "The Wright engine is doing fine. We have not begun to feel the effects of the trip. It is less tiresome so far than riding in an automobile. We have been flying at an altitude of 2,000 feet, but will come down to 1,200 feet. Will probably spend most of the night around Long Island, but Wednesday morning we'll swing down and fly around the Woolworth building."

If their test of the monoplane proves satisfactory, Acosta and Chamberlain may attempt to fly from New York to Paris later in the spring. They were maintaining the speed which they would expect to follow on a transatlantic flight.

Two thousand eight hundred pounds of fuel and food were aboard the Bellanca when she left the flying field, a load which made the plane slightly tail heavy. As the flight progressed, however, consuming a part of the gasoline supply, she was seen to right herself and seemed to be flying easily.

Food for the pilots consisted of sandwiches, coffee and soups in thermos bottles, and chocolate bars. They relied each other every few hours at the controls.

Acosta said he believed he would be able to sleep for a few hours at a time after the first 24 hours, but Chamberlain said he probably would attempt to remain awake all the time. The weather bureau predictions indicated that the pilots would have a clear sky in which to complete their flight.

The American record for sustained flight is 36 hours 4 minutes and 34 seconds, established by Lieutenants Oakley Kelly and John Macready at Wilbur Wright field, Dayton, Ohio.

Gotham Bids Bathtub Hero Long Farewell

Producer Is Aboard Atlanta-Bound Prison Special To Serve Sentence.

New York, April 12.—(AP)—Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, was on his way in a prison car tonight to the state prison at Sing Sing, where he will serve the term of two years for grand larceny that he was sentenced to after a trial in New York.

Carroll, 38, was arrested last week after a trial in New York. He was charged with the crime of telling two federal grand juries that no one occupied the tub at his "bathtub party" more than a year ago.

Surrendering to United States Marshal Hecht this morning he was spared the notoriety of appearing in court himself, his attorney being allowed to rise before Judge Hand when the theatrical producer's name was called.

"He surrenders," the attorney said, Carroll being then carefully looked after in the marshal's office from the crowd that filled the third floor corridor of the federal building. In the marshal's office he stayed until the prison car was ready.

Then he was whisked, with two other prisoners, in an automobile and unannounced, to the station where his wife boarded a sleeper in the same train as he was hustled into the barred car under guard of several marshals. Mrs. Carroll will live in Atlanta while her husband serves his sentence of a year and a day.

Two prisoners taken from the federal building to the station with Carroll without intermediate incarceration in the toms were Alexander A. Lipschutz and Former Assemblyman William C. Ames. Eighteen other prisoners who made up the party being taken to Atlanta were held at the toms until train time and taken to the station in the prison van.

The prison car has sleeping berths and a toilet. Carroll had been assigned a lower. Meals will be brought from the regular dining car, each prisoner being allowed to spend three dollars a day and any amount of his own money he likes.

Although the bathtub party was the most sensational action with which Carroll had been connected, he came into public notice two and a half years ago for the display of scantily clad women's figures in theatrical posters in the lobby of his theater. Arrested on the ground that the pictures were an offense to public decency he was acquitted.

Notables Attended.

The bathtub party was held a year ago Washington's birthday and was attended by many guests including Countess Cathcart, who had just been admitted to the country after being detained at Ellis Island for moral reasons.

That Easter Outfit

It's a mighty pretty custom we have of coming out Easter Sunday garbed in a new outfit of clothing, and we of the South have much the advantage of our cousins in the far north. Up there, anywhere from the east to the far west it is likely to be very cold or even snowing, while in the South we are certain of mild weather.

If you have not already purchased your Easter outfit there is still ample time. The merchants of the city have just what you desire, and you will find the various articles advertised in today's Constitution and attractively priced. Read The Constitution advertisements this morning and then you will be prepared to do your Easter shopping.

DOCTOR ACCUSED IN CLUB MURDER

Detroit, April 12.—(P)—The mysterious clubbing to death in the family home the night of February 22 of Mrs. Grace Loomis today resulted in the arrest of her husband, Dr. Frank L. Loomis, a physician and surgeon, on a charge of first-degree murder and the detention of police witnesses of three other persons, one of them a woman with whom the physician is said to have associated before his wife's death.

Dr. Loomis, who was grilled for several days late in February and later released through habeas corpus proceedings instituted by professional friends, was arrested in his office today about one hour after a recorder's court judge had signed a warrant while eating lunch.

The three held as police witnesses are Roy Newell, 38; his divorced wife, Gertrude, 35, and the latter's friend, Mrs. Jessie Fraser, 31. Detectives of the homicide squad said Mrs. Newell had admitted that she accompanied Dr. Loomis on automobile rides previous to the time Mrs. Loomis was slain and that they were in the habit of stopping at bootlegging establishments and drinking. The physician, the detective said, when first arrested in February, admitted he had escorted Mrs. Newell on two occasions.

Mrs. Fraser, at whose home Mrs. Newell is said to have lived, is held, the officers announced, to corroborate the woman's story that she had been friendly with Dr. Loomis.

Newell, according to the detectives, is held because he visited several places frequented by Dr. Loomis and Mrs. Newell, and asked attendants there not to discuss the slaying of Mrs. Loomis. The body of the physician's wife was found on the floor of a sun room with the head battered and marks on the hands and arms indicating a terrific struggle with her assailant.

U. S. FREIGHT LOADINGS SHOW SLIGHT DECLINE

Washington, April 12.—(P)—Freight loadings for the week which ended April 2 fell below the million mark for the first time in three weeks, reaching a total of 992,745 cars, the American Railway Association announced today.

This was a decrease of 16,143 cars as compared with the week preceding, but a gain of 64,442 cars over the corresponding week of 1926. The classifications were: Miscellaneous freight, 339,765 cars, an increase of 38,058 over the same week of 1926; coal, 175,176, an increase of 18,259; merchandise and less than carload lots, 289,041, an increase of 6,860; grain and grain products, 37,567, an increase of 325; live stock, 26,873, an increase of 5,500; forest products, 70,577, a decrease of 2,538; ore, 10,944, a decrease of 1,230; coke, 12,112, a decrease of 540.

AVIATOR REPORTS "HOURS OF HELL" FELT ON FLIGHT

San Juan, Porto Rico, April 12.—(P)—"We have had some hours of hell. But I would hate to go on another Pan-American flight to be suggested, because I know everyone of us would want to start again."

This was the reference to the hardships of the Pan-American flight of the United States army made by Major Herbert A. Dargue, flight commander, in addressing a Rotary club luncheon here today. The fliers had reached here from the Virgin Islands during the morning.

Major Dargue said the voyage through the West Indies had been made without untoward incidents. He added that the fliers were all well and were looking forward to the last stages of the flight.

The 80-mile hop from St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, to this city today required less than an hour. After landing the aviators called on Governor Townier, of Porto Rico, and Mayor Todd, of San Juan.

The fliers now have reached the sixth and last stage of their "good will" flight around South America. After leaving here they will make two stops in Haiti and four in Cuba before landing in the United States at Miami. Then they will continue northward and end the great adventure at Washington.

SACCO-VANZETTI OPINIONS SPLIT

Boston, April 12.—(P)—Expressions of opinions widely divergent, delivered to Governor Alvan T. Fuller, continued tonight to provide chief interest in the fight to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted murderers, from the electric chair.

Fourteen members of the British parliament, in a cablegram delivered late today, aligned themselves with 22 others who previously had demanded the liberation of the two men. The flood of letters reaching the state house no longer was unanimous in sentiment, however, for several urged the fight to save Sacco and Vanzetti, while others urged their execution.

The English cablegram read: "Beliefs of parliament are emphatically in favor of rejection of new trial, and view with horror violation of justice committed in this case, demand withdrawal of death sentence and their immediate release." (Signed) Purcell, Kenworthy, Compton, Saklatvala, Adamson, Lodge, Lindley, Edwards, Williams, Walter, Welch, Barr, Montague and Barker.

Although suggestions continue to multiply, little direct action has been taken. Representative Edward B. Sawyer's petition which would put the case on record as favoring the appointment of a commission to review the case, still remains in the hands of a legislative committee, without any hint of when it will be acted on. Meanwhile, the defense committee is advocating a similar drive to provoke a landslide of petitions for clemency have been placed in the mails.

The other side of divided public opinion also made itself heard. Professor Warren K. Moorehead, of Phillips Andover academy; Collins Gram, vice president of the National Surety company of New York; and Attorney Jesse D. Crook, of Boston, each wrote the governor urging him to take no action in behalf of the condemned men.

MASS MEETING CALLED TO PROTEST.

New York, April 12.—(P)—Protests against the imposition of the death penalty on Sacco and Vanzetti will be voiced from four platforms simultaneously in Union Square Saturday afternoon, it was announced today by Robert W. Dunn, treasurer of the Sacco-Vanzetti emergency committee of New York. Among those who will speak at the mass meeting will be Forrest Baily, director of the American Civil Liberties union; Arthur Garfield Hayes, attorney; James P. Cannon, general secretary of the International Labor defense, and Edward J. Heitzberg, DeWitt Carter and Harvey C. Alexander, vice presidents.

The insurance is prorated among the four insurance companies which Caldwell and company control—the Cotton States Life, of Nashville; the North American National, of Nashville; the Inter-Southern, of Louisville; and the Missouri State Life, of St. Louis. The amount given to each company was based upon its capitalization.

Governor Peay prepared the veto message Saturday, and when it was read to the senate Monday morning, scored a surprisingly crushing victory in obtaining support for the veto.

Chicago Board Expels Armour Grain Company
Chicago, April 12.—(P)—Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade by unanimous vote tonight denied all trading privileges to the Armour Grain company which for 40 years has been one of the leading firms transacting business on the exchange. The decision was ordered effective at the close of business next Saturday.

The action was based on a preliminary report by a special committee which for several weeks had been hearing witnesses in connection with the recent findings of an arbitrator in a dispute between the Armour Grain company and Rosenbaum grain interests growing out of the formation of the defunct grain marketing company. The arbitrator held that the Armour Grain company had used its superior position to force the other grain companies to sell at a price lower than the market price.

The committee's preliminary report said that 20 witnesses had been heard and that it was appointed, March 8, and held: "The testimony clearly shows wrongful acts for which we deem the Armour Grain company responsible, since these acts were those of persons then in the employ of or under the continuing influence of the Armour Grain company. Several persons engaged in these wrongful acts are not members of the board of trade, nor subject to its discipline. These acts were such as constitute major offenses, being acts of dishonesty."

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO CUBA EXPECTS TO RESIGN POST
Washington, April 12.—(P)—A request by Major General Enoch H. Crowder for relief from duty as ambassador to Cuba is expected by President Coolidge.

The president was represented today as having felt that the ambassador has been taxing himself beyond his strength with his duties and as not being in the best of health. It was added that Mr. Crowder regards Mr. Crowder's services as having been excellent and he regretted that he would soon give up his post. There was no indication that the president had given consideration to appointing a successor.

General Crowder, who was protest marshal general during the world war, was sent to Cuba in 1921 as the general representative of President Harding. Later he was appointed as ambassador. He is 68 years old.

the growers of India Tea

have been asking the American People, for the last three years, to drink India Tea or blends containing India Tea. They desire now to thank the many American people who are drinking India Tea for the first time. They believe that all the claims put forward in the India Tea advertisements have been proved to be true by those who now favour its stimulating drink. Truthful advertising always pays—and, even if you have always said that you don't like tea, and will be good enough to get a packet or a bag containing India Tea and make it according to the directions given below, you will be yet another American citizen who has been convinced by our facts about tea.

Here are the directions for making perfect tea. Read them carefully in order to get the best results:

Use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea, and make it in the correct way. Use an earthenware teapot, previously warmed. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each person, or the usual Tea Bag. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. India Tea also makes the best Iced Tea.

TAX EXEMPTION FOR FARMS URGED BY IVAN E. ALLEN

Ivan E. Allen, prominent Atlanta business man, was principal speaker at the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men Tuesday night at the Atlanta Athletic club. Mr. Allen spoke on the proposed tax exemption law for farmers.

In his talk Mr. Allen quoted many figures that have recently been compiled by the Georgia association, relative to the consumption of various farm products, by Georgia residents, and those figures showed, he declared, the need of a tax exemption to the Georgia farmer. In quoting the figures he said there is a deficit of production relative to consumption in the state of butter, beef, pork, eggs, poultry, corn, hay and other products. He also showed in many instances where farm lands have been idle for several years and that if the tax on the farm and its implements were exempted, many owners would return to their idle farms and make use of them.

AIDE OF CHIANG BIDS FOR PEACE

BY LAWRENCE WILSON.

Special correspondent for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.

Shanghai, China, April 12.—Kuo Tai-chi, newly appointed foreign minister for Chiang Kai-shek, Cantonese generalissimo, tonight announced that he had invited communist leaders to a conference at which a solidification of the nationalist party would be attempted. If the parties fail to reach an agreement, Kuo said, immediate steps will be taken to oust the communists from the party, by force if necessary.

"We intend to organize the party along the principles of Sun Yat-sen and we will compromise only if the communists are prepared to stop their extreme measures."

Orders from Hankow yesterday, instructing Chiang to discharge Kuo, how clearly that the red element is attempting to force the moderates, including Chiang, out of the party.

"Hankow's trickery," Kuo said, "relied in the Nanking affair and other incidents. We have proof that the communists have attempted to withhold munitions sent to us from Canton; we attempted to break food lines and communications and to embarrass our soldiers in every way possible."

"Communists and foreign advisers of revolutionary leanings are causing all of our troubles and there must be a showdown."

"If the communists from Hankow refuse to attend the conference we will proceed to take measures to carry out our program—without them."

COOLIDGE BACKERS START CAMPAIGN

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, April 12.—(Copyright by United News.)—President Coolidge desires to run for reelection and is making plans to that end, it can be gathered from the word of men who have been called in to advise the president as to his political course.

Preliminary reports from political investigators have convinced the president that he will have little difficulty in being renominated. He realizes that his chances of being reelected are naturally subject to greater uncertainty because there are more factors beyond his control. But at this moment, the president feels confident—sufficiently confident to regard the effort as worth chancing.

This correspondent is informed that the president is making very definite plans looking to the reelection of his term. There is the possibility of an earthquake changing one's plans. Even such a foresighted calculator as President Coolidge must take his chances on these unpredictable acts of God. But so far as he can see into the future, so far as he can weigh the known political factors, he believes he can be renominated and reelected and he is acting now on that belief.

Just now the president is undertaking to strengthen his weakest spot—the disaffected farm belt. He has called in some of those responsible for the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which he vetoed last session and asked them to prepare a new farm relief bill which will strike some middle ground between the extreme McNary-Haugen scheme and the simple farm loan plan which the administration has hitherto restricted itself to. The president expects to have this new farm relief bill ready for congress next December. He expects to have the major groups on both sides lined up for it, he expects to get it through with a whoop, sign it, and restore himself in the affections of the farmer.

The farm bill now being prepared at the president's suggestion and the equalization fee which was so highly objectionable to the president last winter. Instead it proposes that there shall be a government-backed grain corporation which will buy and sell in the market to keep the prices of farm commodities up to the full margin permitted by the tariff—that is, the world price. This corporation would buy wheat, if wheat were low, until the price went up to the world price plus the tariff. Then government sponsored purchases would stop.

If the price went higher, the government would sell wheat back in and bring the price down to the tariff line again. This, it is contended, would protect the farmer and also save the city consumer from being the victim of extortionate prices. The plan would cover not only the half dozen "basic" commodities on the McNary-Haugen bill but all major farm commodities.

President Coolidge has not committed himself entirely to this plan. It is only in the rough form now. Farm leaders in Chicago expect to go over it thoroughly this week. An emissary of the president will go to Chicago in the hope of converting the farmers to it. Farm leaders are still clinging to the equalization fee and it will be the object of this emissary to persuade them to accept a more moderate plan. However, the scheme involves buying and selling of commodities by the government—or the sponsoring of them through a government subsidized corporation which is the same thing. This is contrary to some of the president's views but he may, for the sake of getting something through, accept some objectionable features for the larger good.

Then Secretary of Agriculture J. C. S. is working this week on some what similar plan in cooperation with several business men who have been investigating the farm relief question out in the country.

To Prepare Bill. Later on, probably in July, when all of the plans have been worked out, they will again be gone over by the president and eventually a bill will come forth intended to be acceptable to the farm groups and to the administration.

This is the president's biggest political problem and he expects to have it solved next winter before the presidential primaries begin. Completion of the legislation will occur just about the time when the president will receive the full benefit of the solution of this long-suffering problem.

The president had about 15 republican political leaders from various parts of the country at breakfast at the White House today. There was some informal discussion among the guests to the effect that in their respective sections the president was strong and could easily be renominated. So far as could be learned the president engaged in no discussion of this subject. He talked only of small and nice political matters to those who sat near him at the table. Doubtless some of the political leaders took him aside and reassured him of their support. But the president said nothing that would commit him at the breakfast, it is understood.

Among those at the breakfast were Chairman Butler, National Committee, of Virginia; Senate Majority Leader Curtis, Senator Smoot, republican leader of Utah; Senator Keyes, of New Hampshire, Representatives Burton and Begg, of Ohio; Senator New York; Treadway, of Massachusetts, and Hersey, of Maine, and Everett Sanders, the president's secretary.

Later Senator Willis Ohio republican, called at the White House and on leaving said:

"Unless there is an earthquake, President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes will be nominated by the republicans and Al Smith and Vic Donahy, of Ohio, by the democrats. Unless among the farmers is greatly agitated. President Coolidge could

Col. Carrington Called "Old Fossil" By His Wife

THREE GRANDPARENTS INVOLVED IN SUIT

Chicago, April 12.—(Copyright by United News.)—Campbell Carrington, a grandparent, named as co-respondent in a divorce action brought by Colonel Edward C. Carrington, a grandparent, against Mrs. Anna Walsh Snyder Carrington, who is a grandmother a month ago, completed his testimony in circuit court here today.

The New York lawyer and publisher upheld the honor of his brother's wife, whom he termed a "most wonderful woman," denying she had ever been guilty of any wrongdoing with him. Mrs. Carrington had never told him she loved him, Campbell testified, but he had always felt she cared for him in a friendly way.

Mrs. Carrington once called for him a "old fossil," Mrs. Edna Hart, a former employee of the Gerard R. Foster, of New York, testified. During a conversation she said she heard Mrs. Foster tell Mrs. Carrington that she didn't see how such an attractive woman ever picked "such an old fossil" as the former servant testified.

"And Mrs. Carrington said, 'Old fossil is right, but a woman with two daughters and a mother to care for cannot be too particular, in the marriage market.'"

More than 200 members of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars from colleges throughout 40 states and Canada opened their fifteenth convention here Tuesday, the high light of which was a banquet Tuesday night at the Henry Grady hotel, where Governor Clifford Walker, Dr. M. JAP BEAUTY TO WED AMERICAN OFFICER

Tokio, April 12.—(Special.)—Japan's most beautiful Eurasian girl, so styled by the Prince of Wales, is to become the bride of an American naval officer in June.

This is Miss Edith Frances de Becker, who was the favorite dancing partner of the British heir during his visit to Yokohama in 1925, the gallant man who has won her being Lieutenant William Joseph Sebald, U. S. N., a language officer attached to the American embassy here. The marriage, however, happy all the friends of the young couple wish it to be, otherwise is going to present some complications for the American immigration officers to unravel sooner or later.

Alien wives of Americans who are of European or African birth may enter the United States as immigrants under the quota of their respective lands and may be naturalized into their husband's nationality, but there is no quota for Japanese, and under American law they are ineligible to citizenship.

CHEMISTS MEET, ANNOUNCE PURE VANADIUM FOUND

Richmond, Va., April 12.—(Copyright by United News.)—The addition of a new metal, vanadium, to the world's resources was announced at a joint session of the division of industrial and engineering chemistry and the division of sugar chemistry of the American Chemical society here this afternoon by J. W. Marden and M. N. Rich, research chemists of the Westinghouse Lamp company, of Bloomfield, N. J. The American Chemical society opened its seventy-third annual convention here Monday and will hold sessions all this week.

Vanadium has been known in its compounds for a long time, according to Dr. Marden and Dr. Rich, but in spite of a century of efforts on the part of chemists no one has previously been able to produce it in its pure form.

The method employed by the authors is to heat a mixture of vanadic oxide, metallic calcium and calcium chloride in an electric furnace for an hour at a temperature of 900 degrees centigrade. After cooling and stirring the resulting mass in cold water, metallic vanadium is obtained in the form of beads.

LOUISVILLE ELECTION Decision Now Rests With Appeals Court

Frankfort, Ky., April 12.—(Copyright by United News.)—With Kentucky's highest legal tribunal, the court of appeals, rests the question of whether 40 Louisville city officials and nine Jefferson county officials, in 1925, will be unseated. Oral argument in the case was finished today and the case advanced to the court for decision.

The democrats are contesting the election on grounds of "fraud, conspiracy, bribery and violations of the corrupt practice act," and are asking the court to throw out 38 precincts in the "black belt" in Louisville and seat the democratic candidates or else declare "no election."

Reeves was described as a man of about 40 years of age, weighing about 140 pounds and approximately five feet, six inches in height.

W. F. Gaultney, alleged driver of the automobile in which E. J. Hodges was fatally injured on March 1 on Whitehall street in a collision with a street car, was indicted Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

The indictment charges Gaultney with being intoxicated at the time of the accident. Hodges, who was riding with Gaultney when the machine collided with a street car on Whitehall, near Brotherton, died two days later.

Fitchett, who sometime ago confessed that he shot Donaldson, in vestigator for Solicitor General John A. Boykin, last July.

Attorney Howard said he will endeavor to have Fitchett returned to Atlanta as a witness for the defense, stating that he does not believe Fitchett can identify any one of the men he named as being implicated in the Donaldson murder. Howard said that he can prove that the entire case is a fabrication originating in Fitchett's mind.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED BY SUPREME COURT

The supreme court Tuesday granted a new trial to Atkinson Etheridge, convicted of murder in Jones county in connection with the killing of two county policemen and sentenced to serve a life sentence.

The new trial was granted on the ground that one of the members of the jury which convicted Etheridge was related within the prohibited degree to the sheriff of the county who was the prosecutor in the case. The supreme court ruled that the trial judge erred in not recognizing the sheriff as the prosecuting official in the case.

Avoid Costly Mistakes; Insure Yourself Today

Mistakes are costly. Avoid them if you can, but above all things, don't make two mistakes at once.

Whenever there's a traffic accident a mistake was responsible. Let error end there. Don't make the double mistake of being uninsured against financial want that so often follows in the wake of auto crashes.

You can't be careful both for yourself and the other fellow, but you can protect yourself against an abrupt halt in income and safeguard the future of your wife and children.

For only $1.25 per year, The Constitution offers you the famous $7,500 travel accident policy issued by the North American Accident Insurance company, an old and reliable concern that has paid more than $50,000 on claims of Constitution policyholders. Under the terms of this policy, payments are provided ranging downward from $7,500 for death resulting from certain specified accidents; heavy cash sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the accidents enumerated.

A wreck of trains or public carriers; a crash of automobiles; the onrushing wheels of a speeding car, a burning building—any one of these may claim your life or injure you today.

Act now. Advertisements appear regular in this paper describing the insurance offer in detail.

This $7,500 travel, $2,000 auto and $1,000 pedestrian accident policy is issued only to subscribers of The Daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 70 at $1.25 per policy per year. Open to both old and new subscribers.

The luncheon was presided over by Graham West, president. Albert J. Roebuck, secretary of the Kawner company, was introduced as a new member.

NEW CEMENT CONCERN OPENS OFFICES HERE

The Georgia-Portland Cement corporation, which has announced that it will build a large cement plant near Sandersville, has opened offices at 1605-1606 Candler building in order to handle the extensive business of the new concern from Atlanta. J. I. McCants, vice president, is in charge here.

Organizers of the company are Augusta men, with J. L. Hankinson as president and Mr. McCants and J. C. Hagler as vice president. Both Mr. Hankinson and Mr. Hagler are pioneers in the brick and tile industry in Augusta, and Mr. McCants is known as one of the veteran cement men of the south, with a long record of achievement in that field.

For 12 years he was manager of sales for the Standard Portland Cement company, at Leeds, Ala., before that company was absorbed by the Atlas-Portland Cement company, and his sales record in that capacity was brilliant. Mr. McCants has been connected with other cement interests in the south, having recently resigned as manager of sales for the Signal Mountain Portland Cement company of Chattanooga with which company he was connected for several years. Approximately 827 acres of lime rock and clay suitable for the manufacture of high grade Portland cement are owned in fee by the company. These holdings are located in Washington county, between Sandersville, Tennille, and at McLean, on the Central of Georgia railroad.

It is proposed to erect a plant with an initial capacity of 1,000,000 barrels and an ultimate capacity of 1,500,000 barrels of cement per year.

RUSSELL TELLS LIONS OF NEW CITY CHARTER

Councilman Horace Russell, advocate of the proposed new city charter, explained the advantages of the city manager system of municipal government as principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Lions' club Tuesday afternoon at the Wineoff hotel.

Other entertainment features included a vocal quartet, consisting of Mrs. Lessie McMichael, Miss Clara Maude Harper, Mrs. Shelly Ivey and Mrs. C. H. Baglan, Joseph B. Wolfe, president, presided.

QUICK ACTION REACHED IN WHITE FIRM SUIT

A verdict was rendered Tuesday in Judge G. H. Howard's court in behalf of the defendant, Comer Howell, against whom claim was made by the White Provision company, which charged that the firm of Comer Howell and company had dealt with W. H. White, Jr., and that the latter had made payment for purchase of commodities for the funds of the White Provision company, of which he was president.

The defense was that the purchases were made solely for the company and that only such commodities as were dealt in by the company were bought by Mr. White, who gave the company checks for the purchases, all of which were made through the Chicago board of trade. The amount involved was $12,500.

The case was heard for two days, the jury retiring at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and promptly bringing in a verdict for the defendant on the ground that the purchases were made by Mr. White as president in the line of the company's business.

John A. Sibley and Reuben Arnold represented Mr. Howell, the White Provision company being represented by Arthur Heyman, its regular attorney, and by W. S. Thomson, one of the attorneys of the receivers.

CHURCHMEN PLAN TO FIGHT TIGERS IN WASHINGTON

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, April 12.—Indication that Lincoln C. Andrews, national dry enforcement chief, is experiencing difficulty in keeping bootleggers out of the District of Columbia developed today when it was announced that a large delegation of Washington church people are forming a organization to aid in dry law enforcement.

Bearing the title, "Church Service Organization of Washington, D. C.," the organization is being sponsored by the organized Bible Class association. Its purpose is to dig up evidence of dry law violation and turn it over to the police. Harry N. D. Thitt, a former prohibition agent, is secretary.

THE ATLANTA SCHOOL AUDIT.

The audit of the Atlanta school board's accounts for 1926 is not only a terrific indictment of that organization's financial administration, but it fully justifies the creation of the citizens' advisory committee.

It is a challenge to the citizens' body to do its full duty courageously to put school administration in Atlanta on a strict business basis, with dependable service, but with expenditures kept strictly within budget limitations.

The schools belong to the public and the public has a right to know every detail, not only as to school operation, but as to the appropriations and disbursements.

The public, therefore, stands today startled at the auditor's disclosures—not that there have been any culpable features attached to school administration, but there has been a reckless disregard for balanced accounts, and an equal reckless disregard for the business necessity of keeping disbursements within income, thereby avoiding overdrafts.

The fact is, since 1920, with the exception of the year 1921 the annual deficits have been gradually increasing until in 1926 it reached the astounding total of $838,098.36—the situation that brought about the acute crisis which threatened the closing of the schools in the fall of 1926, and was averted only by a group of citizens indorsing notes upon the strict proviso that a citizens' committee should supervise disbursements during the remainder of 1926, and through the entire year of 1927.

It will be illuminating to again see the climbing deficits during the five years—1922 to 1926 inclusive—as disclosed by this audit. They follow:

1922—Receipts, $1,838,704.79; disbursements, $1,935,816.12; overdraft, $97,111.33.

1923—Receipts, $2,124,403.42; disbursements, $2,461,007.49; overdraft, $336,604.07.

1924—Receipts, $3,037,627.62; disbursements, $3,527,606.57; overdraft, $489,978.95.

1925—Receipts, $2,970,577.62; disbursements, $3,392,170.88; overdraft, $421,593.26.

1926—Receipts, $2,046,794.31; disbursements, $3,484,892.67; overdraft, $1,438,098.36.

In the face of these facts, aside from the scathing criticisms of various features of school administration, bookkeeping, and even school curricula made by the auditor, the citizens' committee is face to face with the problem of correcting this evil.

Such a policy of permitting annual increases in overdrafts—in the face of the other startling fact that school appropriations have increased 90 per cent since 1920, with a school attendance increase of only 46 per cent in the same period—would bankrupt any institution in the world.

School administration is just as much a business as the administration of any business or industry in which great sums of money are annually received and disbursed. It ought to demand an even more cautious policy of conservation.

The schools touch the heartstrings of practically every home. Every parent has a deep personal interest in them. The funds appropriated for their operation are the most sacred of all public funds.

In the face of the auditor's report the new budget can now be intelligently made and the citizens' committee—charged with a great responsibility—will be expected to do its duty without fear or favor.

There can no longer be any argument as to what that duty is.

It is gratifying to know that it exists, and it is hoped the school board will hereafter cooperate with it without friction, but with the constructive objective of getting Atlanta school finances, and school administration, back upon a sound and business-like basis.

THE BUTLER-BORAH DEBATE.

The old Roosevelt club in Boston took on a new dignity overnight. The wet and dry debate between Dr. Butler and Senator Borah injected new life into an organization that had been dwindling in membership and in interest.

The debate itself did not bring out any new facts. Both of the debaters' positions were not only known throughout the country, but their lines of argument were almost equally as well known. They have issued statements, written magazine articles, and found other channels of publicity—to such an extent that the average student of such things could almost repeat by heart in advance what each of them would say.

The debate, however, did prove one thing—that it is possible to intelligently discuss the great prohibition issue, coupled with the enforcement issue, in the best of temper and with mutual respect.

The Brooklyn Eagle is glad the debate was held, and it encourages further discussions along the same line. It says:

"Honest prohibitionists and honest opponents of prohibition should be glad that this debate was undertaken and that it should encourage further public discussion. It is idle to argue that prohibition is purely a moral question which should be divorced from politics. It was put into politics deliberately by the drys, through methods which its noisiest protagonists, Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler, has fully and frankly explained. It will be kept in politics by those who disagree with Mr. Wheeler and his sympathizers until such time as public opinion inclines overwhelmingly to one side or the other, and compels either rigid and effective enforcement or a change in the law."

We heartily agree with The Eagle.

Everybody knows that so-called enforcement is a farce, despite the enormous tax upon the people. The federal constitution is too sacred as the nation's organic law, and law enforcement is too important in maintaining the integrity of government, for any law, fundamental or statutory, to become a mockery.

It is possible that intelligent, good-natured discussions, such as the Butler-Borah debate, may make people think more seriously, and perhaps more resourcefully, on the necessity for law enforcement, and thereby render a real service.

EDUCATORS WELCOME.

Atlanta extends a cordial southern welcome to the 200 or more visiting registrars of American colleges who are in convention at the Henry Grady hotel. Delegates are present from 40 states, and among them are some of the most notable educators of the country.

This is the first convention of the kind ever held in the south, and it is attracting wide attention among the presidents and faculty members of local institutions.

Atlanta is an educational center, with great universities and colleges. The visiting educators will visit some of these institutions.

The death of Dr. Malcolm E. Turner has carried deep, irreparable sorrow into the hearts of thousands of close personal friends.

He was not only one of the south's most outstanding dental surgeons, with an extensive personal practice in addition to rendering valuable service as a professor in the Atlanta-Southern Dental college, but he was one of the sweetest, finest characters in Atlanta—a friend to mankind, broad-minded, big-hearted, even-tempered, and markedly useful in unselfish service.

He was one of God's noblemen, and in his passing not only his profession but the city of Atlanta lost one of its noblest, purest citizens.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

New York, April 12.—I looked about the place and was smitten by an ever-present sense of disturbing emptiness. Four well-begone patrons each seated half a mile apart accentuated the melancholy decay that brooded over the long room.

A round-shouldered, old Irish waiter flung down a soiled dinner card. The front of it was handsomely decorated with a border of old English grease spots. The interior was stained with coffee and across the section marked "Cold Cuts," some earnest traveling man had figured his commissions.

The poor chap had had a rotten day.

The waiter went away and returned to toss some discouraged silverware in front of me. He had been toying with the butter and the rim of the glass bore his Bertillon—a broad-gauge, spatulate, fore-square, libelous thumbprint.

I looked from the impress to the face of its author and saw at once that I was regarding a man who had come to the jumping-off place. Nothing mattered any more. He was past caring.

He brightened up a bit, however, around tip-time, tossing me a perfunctory "Sir," as I was departing.

It was very pathetic.

I realized just how pathetic it was until I had negotiated with the mournful maiden at the door for the return of my hat and coat.

I had purchased the lid only the day before. It is impossible to containable and what the department store ads call "trig." It is finished in light tan and like the human soul, is easily soiled.

Paying the cheerless checker I was about to don the lid when I observed that the under portion of the brim was coated with a light layer of soot.

"Are you aware," I said to the shelves are coated with dust?"

She permitted her rosy lips to fall apart displaying a row of perfect parkers and stood staring at me with the far-away glassy look of a dead codfish.

Brushing past her I sought Mournful Mike in the vintage Tuxedo.

"Look at my hat," I said. "Those shelves are thick with dust. I can write my name on them."

He looked at me as if to say: "Well, that's one of the benefits of a liberal education."

But he spoke no word.

So I came away.

The sooner father time gains admittance to that cobbler's parlor the better.

Deferred good-byes of that sort usually end in tragedy.

Health Talks

MEGRIM BY VARIOUS OTHER NAMES.

Megrim is otherwise known as migraine, periodic sick headache, hemiparesis, hemiclone, blind stag, mad staggers. A blind area at one side of the center of vision often occurs, with scintillating or "fortification" flashes of light.

A warning signal of onset. But the megrim sufferer has no just cause and provocation for ascribing his suffering to his liver or stomach, or to any fault of the stomach or digestion. Not all one-sided headaches, with visual disturbances and nausea or vomiting, are megrim, and not all megrim is one-sided, concludes Dr. Edward J. Hartung, from a study of 50 cases of migraine in a group of 250 cases in which headache was the chief complaint.

There is a clear indication of hereditary influence in megrim. The heredity follows the Mendelian law of inheritance and studies of the future by Buchanan in the Mayo clinic led this investigator to the conclusion that the tendency toward megrim is as innate as the color of hair or tallness. Students of the megrim are yet baffling disorder have always regarded it as a neurosis or rather a psychoneurosis, similar to epilepsy, tic (habit spasm), tremor, and neurasthenia (whatever this may be). This view envisages the patient's case situation or family history as neurotic, that is, as a predisposing factor in the development of the disorder. Indeed, grandpa's hysteria for grandfathers do have true hysteria—or mother's fondness for alcoholic stimulants—for folk fond of intoxicating drinks still like to call them "stimulants" as a source of neurosis.

If any of these psychoneuroses or neuroses occur in your family don't feel sensitive about it. If any family member shows as many as three of these conditions, you are in a bad way.

There is a saying, invented by the late Dr. Biggs, New York state health commissioner, that "migraine is purchasable." Personal health is not purchasable but within reasonable limitations it is attainable, and on this premise, continued megrim is not more ashamed of an excessive morbidity or mortality rate, whether from pipeless gas stoves or from neglect of sanitary rules regarding water supply or sewage disposal than an individual should feel about preventable impairments of his own health.

If you and I are born with a neurotic taint which manifests itself in your case as hysteria and in mine as epilepsy or megrim, is there nothing we can do to ameliorate or improve our condition? Watch this column and we shall see.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Future Wars.

Wars of the future will be more like those of primitive times by reason of the universal character of conscription. In ancient days the whole people fought, men, women, children and old men hurled stones at Caesar's legionnaires at the time of the conquest of Gaul. In the next war the whole population will be engaged, without regard to age or sex, as the new French defense law puts it. Women will be mobilized, not for fighting service, "in the beginning" but for work behind the front. The old peasant will be as much subject to aerial attacks as the soldier at the front. For the conscript is soldier in the same principle it is expected, that is without regard to age or sex. Parliament passed the law unanimously, with the exception of the communists. The only lively debate was occasioned by the clause that members of parliament might be liable for active service.

"What Price Glory?"

M. Paul Valery, the famous poet who was elected to the Academie Française a few months ago, is telling an entertaining story against himself. Walking in the Bois de Boulogne the other morning, he was saluted by an opulent-looking man, who greeted him with a hearty "bonjour, M. Paul."

Recognized in him the son of a charwoman who forty years ago did the heavy work of the Valery household. The opulent-looking one immediately set out to tell his life story.

Kindred.

For nearly two generations an equestrian statue of Napoleon III has been relegated to the courtyard of a Milanese palace. It had been ordered at the initiative of prominent Italians, among Manzoni, Gino, Capponi, Verdi, and General Cadorna, the minister. But the radicals, democrats, and republicans of the day opposed its inauguration, basing their objection upon the "moral incompatibility" of erecting a monument to Napoleon III at Milan, where there was already a monument to the soldiers of Mentana, those Garibaldians, who in 1867, were arrested by the French chaspeots on their march on papal Rome. The question of the statue's removal has been solved by Mussolini and the statue is to be erected in the public park of Milan with marked honors. Not only does free Italy owe much to Napoleon III, but Mussolini owes a great deal to his code in setting up the fascist regime, bristling with "security nets."

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

BY ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.

JOINING THE SLOW CLUB.

This boy signs himself, "Abe," and like his namesake he is on the job of freeing the slaves. But in this case the slaves are those boys and girls who are on the wrong track and those old folks who are unsympathetic with modern youth. He starts off knocking the elderly statesmen.

"Why don't the older people quit gossiping about powder, paint, boyish bobs and other petty things and get down to fundamentals? Why don't they open their homes to their own children instead of driving them out of the house because they don't want the plush on the chairs worn or the mud on the carpets or the photograph of a dead ancestor?"

Only yesterday I heard an old maid say, "Don't the girls dress terribly these days? They don't wear enough clothes to hide the vaccination marks."

I am 20, married and the mother of two children. If I were single I surely would try to imitate some of the cute little lappers we see every day.

—Perhaps a Bit Envious Myself.

Answer.—I have often wondered whether some of these remarks which we hear from older people don't come from a bitterness within themselves. I have often thought that some organization ought to be formed composed of self-sacrificing men who would give these ladies automobile rides and a hand squeeze. I imagine they would prink up quite a bit and be very grateful.

No One Will Know.

"Please don't print this," several readers enjoin me. Of course I obey. But for the benefit of those who bestate to write me a letter lest their personal affairs, even anonymously, get into type I will say this: "While the questions are genuine and the answers are genuine as I can make them, I use a certain poetic license in disguising the inquirers, so that it will be impossible to trace them to their real homes. I am not a divine, but a neighborly fellow, and I intend to keep it so."

Developed by Discipline.

Do you believe in disciplining a child?

—Seeking.

Answer.—Yes and no. Yes, if you discipline your child to obey laws of good health, conduct, social relations and mental growth. No, if by discipline you mean everlastingly forcing a child to do things to which he is not inclined, to do things without having in back of your head any consistent notion of systematic training. Discipline should not always mean punishment or correction any more than criticism always implies finding fault.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Moonshine, Canada.

Personally I think there are some reasonable opinions held by theosophists, but evidently you do not believe in the possibility of reincarnation.

Is it not possible that we might be transferred to another planet in the universe and continue to advance under different conditions to a greater degree of enlightenment and growth than we can attain here?

To one such as I, who was brought up on the shorter and longer catechisms, the belief is no doubt correct. But I cannot accept the belief that God the Father will punish the men who commit sins, but on the average lead upright lives.

Kindly let me know your ideas on this question.

The idea of progressive life beyond the present world is by no means a monopoly of theosophy. On the contrary, the Hebrew and Christian Scriptures alike teach it, and your belief in it, far from being heretical, is strictly orthodox. He who denies it is the heretic among those who accept the Bible as a standard for religious realities.

But Christianity differs with theosophic doctrine upon the issue of the conscious self identity of this persisting personality. According to the New Testament we know ourselves by the difference in our condition and experience. The same personality grows either better or worse as its tendencies are ordained. Theosophy insists that the great transformations involved in the process destroy the sense of continuity in us. This kind of "reincarnation" seems to me philosophically and morally indefensible. It is the fatal flaw in an elaborate scheme.

The argument of theosophists that Jesus said John the Baptist was Elijah's reincarnation is based upon a misunderstanding of the words. Even were the construction valid it would not remove the difficulty already stated. Personality cannot be transferred from one self-consciousness and self-identity. If John had been Elijah revived again and he did not know it, the logical conclusion is that two different persons are before us.

The consequences of good or evil deeds are visited upon the doer. He who sows reaps in this world or the next. The divine law of absolute justice in the universe demands this continuity of the soul. To shift the praise or blame attached to life by destroying its personal consciousness impugns the sovereign right of the individual to do as he pleases, without having in back of your head any consistent notion of systematic training. Discipline should not always mean punishment or correction any more than criticism always implies finding fault.

Neglected Opportunities in Southern Farming

Editor Constitution: The Atlantic Monthly Magazine published in its February, March and April issues, contributions by Mrs. Hilda Rose which she called "The Stump Farm."

These showed hardships that never have been experienced or approached under the most disastrous conditions ever experienced in our section of the United States.

The only reason that has been observed by me why our farm lands have not drawn more desirable settlers heretofore has been the presence in the rural sections of so many descendants of slaves, with their homes, holdings, churches and country schools.

The would-be northern purchasers of our farm lands desire neighbors of their own caste. Hence, a successful movement of agricultural people from the northwest should include many families, not isolated farmers, and those sections from which the negroes have emigrated.

The restrictions placed on the number of immigrants admitted to the United States has caused the negro cotton raising tenants to migrate to northern cities where wages are higher than our farmers can afford to pay for labor.

Middle Georgia invites the live stock industry and dairying. The land is rolling, no field or pasture without running water. Many varieties of grasses and legumes thrive. The advent of the tractor and improved farm machinery enable the level lands south and west of middle Georgia to produce cotton cheaper than the smaller fields in our rolling country, which is better suited to grazing.

We hear much praise of the popular slogan, "Cow, hog and hen," leaving out the most desirable animal next to the cow in animal industry—the sheep, which to take a prominent place in our diversified farming, needs only the passage by the Georgia legislature of a dog law modeled after that of any of the northern states.

I have been deeply impressed by the hardships borne by northern farmers. Let him who questions the superior attractions offered the working farmer in the south, read "The Stump Farmer," by Hilda Rose. Temperatures as high as 102 degrees in summer, to 40 below zero and lower in winter. Drought, failure of crops, scarcity of proper food. Never yet have I known a failure of all the boll weevil took all the cotton from many areas. Against this, my own country sells between $100,000 and $150,000 in dairy products. One creamery located in Eatonton paid for sweet cream from January 1, 1926, to December 31, 1926, $86,437.57 for his cream, with all the benefits left in the increase of herd and feeding of hogs the skimmed milk, etc. All from a herd of 40 cows. I am not informed of any dairyman located in the rural parts of the northern states obtaining equal financial returns from a similar investment.

I have mentioned one year's sale of cream by a man who depends on dairying as his principal income, but who, still a young man, without inherited property, is the owner of a large valuable plantation, paid for with its full equipment of cattle and farm machinery, all from dairy income, delivered to a local creamery for cash.

Could agricultural people hope for a more desirable location?

BENJAMIN W. HUNT.
Eatonton, Ga., April 12, 1927.

A woman marries the man of her choice, a fine fellow in every way, but her disapproving mother takes every opportunity to "pan" the husband, with the result that the wife weakens over a trivial matter of the moment, decides to leave him, and so the husband, who advises divorce by all means. So the wife leaves a good home and husband for a furnished room with another wife, the mother being unable to support her. The rest of the story is a sad one.

Do you not think that before lawyers are consulted there should be a discussion of grievances, fancied or otherwise?

You present the husband's side with such vigor as to make one desirous of learning what the wife has to say about the matter. Beyond question, overfond mothers sometimes wreck the married happiness of their sons and daughters. They do not have the sacrificial love which finds its greatest satisfaction in the highest welfare of the loved one. Their affection is selfish, mandatory, intensive and, above all, possessive. The child's individuality is often withered by it.

Consequently the daughter who resents this tyranny becomes a rebel, while the one who succumbs to it is all too likely to find herself torn asunder by the difference between her mother and her husband.

Taking your case at its face value I should advise the husband to stand by his wife, carefully explain to her his position, show her the path to self-possession and domestic peace and pledge her his aid and comfort in attaining them. Burdened by this dominating mother she is more to be pitied than blamed. Let him read Thackeray's portrait of "The Old father" in "The Virginians."

The Tailor Stiffens Only the Collar; The Suit Stiffens the Backbone

By Robert Quillen

Men talk of getting back to nature, but it can't be done. Too many things have happened since nature finished her job. One of these is clothes.

The natural state must mean, among other things, the naked state. When men were wild and naked it is probable that pride grew out of nature, the prowess in the hunt and—possibly—length of the beard. But nature had nothing to do with it, for there was no raiment.

As the slow centuries passed, man learned to drape himself and then human nature began to acquire a new trait. The man who had authority, having gained it by reason of his superiority as a killer, employed his authority to get possessions and luxuries. He dressed in the softest skins or the brightest fabrics. And the weaklings were perforce content to dress in rags.

For many thousands of years fine raiment has meant authority and conscious superiority and rags have meant degradation and servility and want.

As a result, a respect for fine clothes and the complacent feeling to be got from fine clothes are just as much a part of human nature as hate, love and fear. Acquired traits are just as genuine as those that were inherent when man had no other covering than hair.

Pick up a lousy bit of life's driftwood; wash, shave and dress him; give him a shine and a cane, and he will hold his chin up and look the world in the eye.

It isn't childish to value what moderns call a "front." It is new-model nature. There is as much kick in a new suit as there is in a drink of booze.

SEARCHERS FAIL TO FIND WILKINS

Point Barrow, Alaska, April 11.—(By Radio to the North American Newspaper Alliance.)—Alger Graham and his native guide returned in their plane Sunday evening from a two-day reconnaissance of the coast of the Arctic ocean east of Point Barrow. They found no trace of Captain George H. Wilkins, his pilot, Ben Eielson, who have been on the ice since March 29, following motor trouble with the plane in which they hoped to find undiscovered land north of Alaska.

Graham dropped letters in Eskimo and English at Tangent Point, Pitt Point, Cape Halkett, Ollitok Point, Beechey Point and Andre Reindeer Camp. These were to be read and held for Wilkins.

Stormy weather delayed the flyers at Beechey Point Saturday night. Graham found the ice along the coast changed since his trip of April 3, under the stresses of the uncertain Arctic weather.

Smooth fields were in sight from the shore, at a distance of 1,000 feet, and there were many open water leads and ice floes, which will delay the return of Wilkins and Eielson. If the ice over which they are walking has been similarly affected by winds and currents.

Alabama Votes For $25,000,000 Issue for Roads

Montgomery, Ala., April 12.—(AP)—Incomplete and scattering returns from practically every South Alabama county indicate that the proposed $25,000,000 good roads bond issue has carried by about four to one in the election held throughout the state today, according to a compilation of the returns here tonight. Many large precincts cast solid votes for the issue.

Montgomery county with only six small precincts unheard from gave a majority of approximately 16 to 1. Bay Minette, in Baldwin county, gave 141 for 1 against while Demopolis, the largest town in Marengo county, gave 300 for and none against. Demopolis, also cast 284 to nothing in favor of a municipal water works improvement issue.

In Coosa county 11 precincts out of 19 gave 411 for to 85 against. One republican beat in Coosa county which heretofore has voted against bond issues gave a majority of three to one.

While the majority is overwhelming for the issue, the vote was unusually light, few of the counties polling as much as forty per cent of the usual voting strength.

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

The pointer for today is: When leading against a trump contract do not open small from a suit that contains an ace; when leading against a No-Trump suit select the strongest long suit.

Yesterday's hand was:

♠ K-9-6-3
♥ Q-7-4-3
♦ A-4-3-2

My answer slip reads:

In No. 5, West should lead the Deuce of Diamonds.

In No. 6, West should lead the Ace of Diamonds.

In No. 7, West should lead the Two of Spades.

The reason for these leads:

No. 5, South, bids one No-Trump and obtains 13 contracts. Not with three four-card suits, should lead the fourth best card of the strongest.

No. 6, South, bids one Spade and obtains the contract. Leading trumps, West does not wish to lead his singleton and be forced; so he declared Tuesday, according to Counsel Boyd.

J. J. Montgomery, another whose name was used on the petition, declared that he also had not been consulted.

"The whole thing was planned by the loan sharks to get favorable mention through newspapers," Attorney Boyd declared at the office of the Atlanta Legal Aid society.

"In the first place, the sharks know well enough that circulars which they pretend to seek to stop have long ago been discontinued, but did accomplish much good in Atlanta.

"If the loan sharks are being persecuted as they would like to have the Atlanta public believe, why haven't they done something towards having our permanent injunctions against them modified, since they were put in force in various courts more than a year ago? As it is, the sharks have done nothing, because they know where they stand."

"Regardless of how often these sharks rant and rave, the Atlanta Legal Aid society will continue to file injunctions against them until they discontinue blackmailing men who are working and who, through unfortunate circumstance, fall into their clutches."

"Licensed brokers who conduct their business according to the laws of the state of Georgia will not be molested and they are doing business as usual. But as long as the Legal Aid society is functioning organized blackmailing in Atlanta is going to be attacked."

ing guests of the adjoining hotel in the lobby. There confusion reigned. Men in evening dress and silk hats endeavored to reassure fashionably dressed women who shrieked anew at every additional crash of flaming scaffolding into the streets.

The fire, characterized by Deputy Fire Chief "Smoky Joe" Martin as the worst skyscraper blaze in the history of New York, attracted a crowd estimated at 50,000 which required 700 police reserves from 10 precincts to keep outside the far flung fire lines.

The blaze in front of the Plaza hotel and the lower end of Central Park for hours was a milling mass of humanity.

The fiery pillar was seen for a distance of more than 20 miles. Buildings for blocks around were menaced for hours by embers and sparks carried by a stiff wind.

Discovered on the thirty-third floor, the blaze ate rapidly to the top, then less swiftly spread downward to the twentieth floor where, shortly before midnight, it was reported under control.

Five alarms brought 30 fire companies which labored under the personal direction of Chief John Keaton with whom Mayor Walker conferred on the scene in mid-evening.

Firemen were handicapped by the inadequacy of the apparatus. The New Netherlands steam pipes could not be manned and a fire tower erected in Fifth avenue fell several hundred feet short of reaching the blaze at the start. By rigging hose up the wall of the Savoy Plaza hotel on the south-east corner of Fifth-ninth street and Fifth avenue, to the twenty-eighth floor, firemen were able to direct several streams on the base of the flames nearly an hour after its discovery.

DR. BURNS SEEKS POST ON EDUCATION BOARD

Following upon the heels Tuesday of the announcement of D. M. Therrell, of the seventh ward, that he would not be a candidate in the coming primary for his post on the board of education, Dr. McIntosh M. Burns, prominent Atlanta physician and surgeon, stated that he would offer for the post vacated, subject to the primary.

Dr. Burns has been importuned to run by scores of friends, he said, but had not definitely decided to enter the race until Tuesday when he learned that Mr. Therrell would not offer for reelection.

Dr. Burns in a major in the medical corps of the national guard, and served on the Mexican border and later served overseas with the 122d infantry, holding the rank of first lieutenant. He is a Mason and has been active in civic affairs for many years. He has resided in the seventh ward for some time, his home being located at 1715 Rodgers avenue, S. W.

Dr. Burns' father, E. P. Burns, served for ten years as a member of the board of education and was a leader in many important developments in the educational system of the city only a few years ago.

Dr. Burns said Tuesday that he will make his formal announcement and statement to voters within the next few days.

PACIFIC STATES GRIPPED BY COLD WAVE AND SNOWS

San Francisco, April 12.—(AP)—The Pacific coast is waiting on the weather man for news of the passing of a cold wave which has gripped the area for two days.

The temperature at Mr. Wilson dropped to 20 degrees yesterday and the famous peak had a 16-inch cap of snow—the heaviest in 20 years. The temperature hovered between 20 and 40 degrees in central California points.

A generous snow was reported by Tonopah, Nev., yesterday and a temperature of 20 degrees was registered there.

Temperatures around freezing were reported from various points in Oregon and Washington.

Snow was general throughout the Rocky mountain states, where air mail planes were delayed.

REPORT IS SUBMITTED IN PUBLISHERS' SUIT

Chattanooga, April 12.—(AP)—Entire morning and afternoon sessions of the hearing of complaints of the federal trade commission against the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association, the American Association of Advertising Agencies, et al, in the Chattanooga federal court today was occupied with the testimony of A. G. Newmeyer, associate publisher of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, and a former president of the S. N. P. A.

Mr. Newmeyer's testimony chiefly concerned a special report compiled by a committee on agency relations of the S. N. P. A. in 1922-23. Mr. Newmeyer was then chairman of the committee. The report was said to have been prepared under instructions authorizing the committee to investigate the entire advertising field and the relations of advertisers to newspaper publishers.

The report, in brief, recommended to the members of the S. N. P. A. that the advertising agents be recognized and that direct national advertisers not be granted the 15 per cent commission customarily allowed to advertising agencies for services rendered.

Washington, April 12.—(AP)—The giant dirigible Los Angeles headed into a strong wind on her journey from Lakehurst, N. J., to Cape Charles, Va., tonight, and unable to moor to the tender Patoka, turned home.

The navy department had received no information regarding the ship's inability to moor to the tender's mast but it was assumed that the strong wind made the mooring inadvisable. Capacity Audience Thrilled By Classic Drama of Bible

BY HERB McCUSKER.

Gazing across the centuries into the picturesque court of Saul, king of Israel, a capacity audience at St. Paul's Methodist church Tuesday night saw enacted there one of the most beautiful dramas of Biblical history.

The occasion was the presentation by the Methodist choir of Marietta, Ga., of the sacred drama "Saul, King of Israel," for the benefit of the building fund of St. Paul's church. Financially and as an entertainment, it was a decided success.

Despite limited scenic effects, the Marietta players succeeded admirably in creating the desired atmosphere, aided materially by the splendor of the finest wardrobe of costumes ever shown here by amateur entertainers. With the entire cast garbed in costumes of the period, the lack of scenery was almost unnoticeable and certainly did not detract from the success of the cantata.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Regina Rambo Benson, the choir portrayed the advent of the shepherd, David, into Saul's court—the slaying of Goliath, the death of the tyrant king and the subsequent crowning of David.

F. B. Fuller, playing dual roles of David and Samuel, the prophet, and Charles McMillan, as Saul, dominated the male portion of the presentation while Mrs. Glenn Giles, as Michal; Mrs. Charles Northcutt, as Abigail; Mrs. Regina Rambo Benson, as the Witch of Endor, and Mrs. George Brown, as the Messenger of Comfort, shared honors.

Not least among the features of the cantata was the orchestral participation, which was directed by Mrs. M. V. Hodges who also acted as accompanist.

Who Knows Lady Won't Change Her Mind Again?

New York, April 12.—(United News.)—Supreme Court Justice John Ford delivered himself of a new twist on the ancient judgment of Solomon Tuesday with Senorita Marguerite Gueto, an operatic soprano, in the role of the baby, sought whether or no by two rival managers anxious to mother her liquid notes.

The senorita seemed to have signed contracts with both Signor Jose Miranda and Signor Felipe J. Verocoeschea, a folio soon to be threshed out in court.

Meantime, each of the managers sought injunctions against the senorita, restraining her from singing one note or one aria for the other.

Justice Ford listened and spoke: "Concealed behind the imposing title of supreme court," said he, "sits a mere man. I am that man, and from long and varied experience I know the pitfalls that await any mere man who interferes with feminine affairs."

"The lady is an artist, a queen of song, whose dulcet voice is known far and wide. And here come two men who seek by legal prayer her services. The lady, I find, has changed her mind—and who knows that she may not again change her mind?"

"What am I to do?"

"Nothing—and yet I shall do something."

School Body 'Finds' $9,336 In Overcharge

W. D. Hoffman, chairman of the current expenditures committee of the board of education, and members of the administration department made a "find" in the arm of $9,336, which they reported Tuesday to the board.

This is in the form of an "overcharge" for power by the Georgia Power company for new schools constructed by the department during 1923-24. Vice President Mitchell, of the power company, already has presented the board with a check covering the amount of the overcharge, which it is said grew out of a cut in the size of equipment installed at the various schools, thus causing a reduction of power required to operate them.

The error was discovered by E. B. Arnold, who conducted the investigation into the high cost of electrical supply. The board passed a resolution of thanks and commendation for Mr. Arnold, R. R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, and the Georgia Power company.

After $2,500 was set aside for the audit of 1923 accounts of the Atlanta school department, $500 for printing of rules of the board for which Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president will appoint committees within the next few days; $200 for a 1927 school directory, and $3,000 as a research fund for investigating mechanical operations of the school department, the residue was directed to the teachers' salary account.

Wuxtra! Atlanta Girl Disrupts Trolley Car Service of City

Carries on Scandalous Conduct With Married Man

BY HERB MCUSKER.

Wuxtra! Big Atlanta scandal! Pretty Miss Jean Eskew, of 4 Hatcher avenue, was seen riding all around town with a strange married man Tuesday!

And not only that, Miss Eskew was actually looted on high—by this same strange man—on a prominent downtown street intersection—and was offered to anyone who would step forth and take her!

Scandalous? You haven't heard half of it!

Miss Eskew, bewitching brunette with enticing eyes and a way-about-her, almost shattered the schedule of the Georgia railway system, and kept the aforementioned married man from going home to his dinner table on time.

It seems that Miss Jean had been visiting her aunt and uncle in College Park Tuesday. When it came time to return home, her uncle placed her in custody of conductor H. M. Blair and requested that his fascinating niece be left off the car on Alabama street, in front of the M. R. and B. Bros. Her father was to be waiting and to claim her.

Holds Up Traffic.

Conductor Blair carried out instructions to the letter. But when the car stopped at the loop corner, no one appeared to receive his charge. After holding up the schedule for several minutes, amidst the clamor of impatient passengers, Blair alighted, took Miss Eskew in his hands and lifted her on high—meanwhile scanning the crowd that lined the curb.

But no anxious father hove into view.

Away went the street car—with Miss Jean Eskew aboard. And again it returned to the loop corner. Once more, Conductor Blair hoisted his charming little charge, and waited. But no response came.

This happened four times. Upon being relieved from duty, Blair took Jean to the "lost and found" department of the Georgia Power company. Plying the nonchalant object of his predilection with candy, gum and a doll, he attempted to learn where lived A. C. Chapin, starter, joined in with the brilliant idea of taking her about the city to see if she would recognize any particular locality.

Brief Affairs Ends.

Just about this time, Assistant Superintendent W. F. Edwards happened in. He volunteered to take Miss Eskew on a city-wide tour—in his automobile. But he did not reckon with his guest, for she did not ride down with Conductor Blair all afternoon and had he not pried her with candy, gum and presents? Why then should she be ready to produce at a ditch him now? So Miss Eskew clung to Conductor Blair.

While this was being debated, there was a scramble at the door. A man and woman burst into the room. Immediately, there was a joyous exclamation from the couple and Miss Jean.

EDUCATION BOARD ACCEPTS RADIO STATION AS GIFT

WIDE radio broadcasting station, formerly located at the J. M. High company, was formally accepted Tuesday afternoon by the Atlanta board of education as a gift from the G. H. M. Electric company. It will be installed for the present at Tech High school to be used in the radio instructional department at that institution.

The station is a 150-watt, 267-meter length unit, and Atlanta will be the only city in the entire south with a broadcasting station and receiver sets, it was announced by Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board.

P. C. Gilman, president of the electric company, offered the gift several days ago, but final action was deferred until the board gave its sanction to the matter.

BAPTIST WOMEN PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR BUILDING FUND

"Buy-A-Brick" will be the slogan of more than 100 pretty girls Saturday when they take the streets of Atlanta in an effort to raise fund for construction of a magnificent new church for the North West Baptist church.

City council has authorized the tag sale, and scores of members of the congregation will take the field actively to support the drive for funds. The women will assist that tag by purchasing a minimum charge of ten cents each, and Tuesday morning they will be ready to produce at a dime when "waited on."

SCHOOL SYSTEM COSTS $777,054 FOR THREE MONTHS

Atlanta's school system cost $777,054 for the first three months of operation during 1926, leaving a balance of $240,495 to be paid for the remainder of the year, according to the monthly report of the schools' financial condition submitted to the board Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board, who made the report, stated that the school system had lost for the program of economy laid out for the schools by city government officials the first part of the year, all the expenditures of which were based on the "tentative budget" system adopted by the school board, and that the citizens' advisory committee has thus far refused to approve.

WARREN, RITCHIE CLASH AT MEETING

Roy D. Warren, school commissioner from the tenth ward, and the assistant superintendent of schools, R. Ritchie, engaged in a verbal fight at a meeting of the board of education Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. Warren charged that a rule he planned to offer had been changed without his knowledge and submitted in his name.

The controversy arose over alleged insertion into a rule requiring that tabulated reports of receipts and disbursements of school fees and other receipts of the words "parent-teacher and other organizations." This would have required parent-teacher and other organizations to submit reports of their activities to the board of education.

Mr. Warren at first said this had been inserted by mistake, but Mr. Ritchie declared he took the matter up with Mr. Warren and he agreed. At this juncture, Mr. Warren stated he never had any idea it was to be included.

He moved that the words be stricken from the rule and it was passed over the protest of Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, of the sixth, who contended that teachers, superintendents and others connected with the school system were forced to give an accounting of their activities to the board of education.

Mr. Warren declared that the parent-teacher organizations are public bodies and are giving an accounting of their time and talents in an effort to make Atlanta's schools better, and that they do not need any regulatory rulings from the board.

Mrs. A. L. Wilson, chairman of the health committee of the board, asked that a committee from that body be named to assist in obtaining a balanced budget for the school year.

Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board, will select the personnel of the committee later.

AUDIT IS DECLARED POLITICAL MOVE

W. C. Lowe, principal of that institution.

Audit Not Submitted.

The audit was to have been submitted formally to the board Tuesday, but it was delayed and the secretary of the board was asked to prepare a copy to go to each member of the board.

Only five copies were submitted by Mr. James, who explained that he was attempting to "hold down the expense to the board."

Other members of the board were assailed by the trio, who intimated that the finished product was a political arrangement instead of a statistical account of receipts of the board for the 12-month period ending December 31, 1926.

Mr. James in his comments, based his conclusions on figures, which he said, had been taken from records of the school department.

Members of the citizens' advisory committee, superintendent of expenditures, and other officials were assailed by the trio, who intimated that the finished product was a political arrangement instead of a statistical account of receipts of the board for the 12-month period ending December 31, 1926.

SCHOOL BOARD LOSES EFFORT TO RECOVER $50,000 FOR PAINT

Paint is not equipment, according to a ruling of the Atlanta bond commissioner supervising expenditure of the $500,000 fund for that purpose in school bond allocations from the $8,000,000 bond issue, and as a consequence the school board will not be reimbursed for $50,000 worth of such work done last summer.

When the board found itself in financial straits it attempted to get the commission to reimburse it for retinting of walls of more than two-score schools last summer, but the board has ruled that this is not additional equipment, and therefore, that the money could not be legally applied for this purpose.

LANDERS TAKES POST VACATED BY MORRIS

J. H. Landers, newly elected member of the board of education from the first ward, who took the post occupied by Dr. Fred Morris, before he was ousted several weeks ago by action of city council, Tuesday attended the meeting of the board for the first time. He was seated as a regular member and accorded all the rights and privileges appertaining to the position.

Dr. Morris attended the session, but was not permitted to vote on any issues. The ousted proceedings have been attacked in the courts by Dr. Morris, and Mr. Landers will retain his seat under a ruling of City Attorney James L. Mayson, until the case is properly adjudicated.

Only five or six buildings in the town were left standing, the same message said. The tornado struck the town about 8:30 p. m.

A detachment of cavalry from Fort Clarke at Brackettville was ordered to proceed to Rock Springs. The Southern Pacific railroad sent a rescue party overland from Del Rio.

The population of the stricken town is approximately 800 persons. It is in the center of the sheep raising and cattle country.

The operator at Rock Springs declared that the dead, hurt and missing comprised so near the entire population of the town that there was little probability of obtaining the number of casualties before morning.

The storm approached the town from the northeast, according to the telephone operator, plowing through, taking practically every house in town.

SWEEPSTAKES

Descending in Haskell and Poteau counties late Tuesday night, a severe storm swept eastward leaving a trail of wreckage, and crossed the Arkansas line, causing extensive damage in Fort Smith, where two were killed and many injured.

Reports from Stigler, Okla., said that three persons were known to have been killed and 15 probably fatally injured in Haskell and Poteau counties.

Residential district of McCurtain and Bokoshe, Okla., sustained some damage and two persons were reported killed when the tornado tore through a rural community one mile west of McCurtain.

Many farm buildings in the path of the twister were leveled and trees uprooted. Heavy rain and lightning accompanied the wind.

A. Drichel and John Ross were the identified dead reported from Stigler, which is 15 miles from McCurtain and lay outside the path of the tornado. A man named Bogner was reported killed at Milroy, Okla.

Homes Wrecked.

D. P. Brown, manager of the McCurtain telephone exchange, declared the storm's devastation, declared every house and building in the path of the storm was splintered and that relief parties made up of dozens of residents of McCurtain and many farm folk living nearby were searching the wreckage of houses and barns and aiding the storm-stricken farmers.

The home of a farmer named McCortley was destroyed and the five members of the McCortley family injured. Three members of the Maghee family were injured, several seriously killed when the wind destroyed their home. Physicians were called to McCurtain from Quinton, Okla., and Stigler.

Sweeping through the farm region near Bokoshe, the tornado leveled some houses, but was said not to have injured any persons, as all in that region sought refuge in storm cellars.

Four Towns Swept.

A check up tonight of the situation in southwestern Oklahoma showed that four towns were swept by tramping winds last night and early today. Mrs. Frank New was killed at Mustang in Canadian county, and ten persons were injured in the vicinity of Union City.

A number of houses and farm buildings were destroyed.

NEW YORK BIDS CARROLL FAREWELL

Carroll, Irvin S. Cobb, Harry K. Thaw and Al Johnson. When newspapers printed the story that Joyce Hawley, a show girl, had served liquor to the guests from a bathtub in the case in which she was seated undraped, Carroll was arrested.

He testified before two grand juries, which were investigating slanders by reports that liquor had been served at the party and in each case swore that no liquor had been served, that no one had occupied a bathtub and that he had no list of guests. On April 12, Carroll was indicted for perjury on six counts.

If he had been convicted on all six counts he might have been sentenced to 300 years in prison and fined $12,000. The trial started May 29, 1926.

The most sensational witness was Miss Hawley, who told in detail of disrobing, being led across the stage by Carroll, while he held a can of beer, and of getting into the tub.

She said she was drunk at the time.

Revenue Claimed.

The defense asserted that Miss Hawley testified as she did in revenge because she had not been given $1,000 demanded after the party. She countered that she had been offered $250 by Carroll subordinate if she would testify before the grand jury that there was no liquor served at the party.

On May 27, 1926, Carroll was found guilty of perjury on two counts. One June 2 he was sentenced to a year and a day and a fine of $1,000. He is released in $5,000 bail pending appeal, which resulted on January 10 of this year in the United States circuit court of appeals affirming the conviction. On March 27, the supreme court at Washington refused to review the case and he was ordered to surrender.

15 WORKMEN KILLED IN CHINESE CITY.

Shanghai, April 12.—(United Press.) While national police killed 16 dead in the native Chinese city as a result of raids against extremists, the nationalist party Tuesday night killed 15 workmen in a battle with its own ranks.

Quo Tai-Chi, nationalist foreign commissioner in Shanghai, declared a fight to the finish against extremists within his own party.

Reports of northern advances south in the direction of the Yangtze river were confirmed and it was admitted that the nationalist government was in a crisis when their executive session was held in Nanking Wednesday.

Effects of the unrest within the party were felt in Shanghai and foreigners feared a prolonged strike as

Sutton Urges Drastic Change In Atlanta School System

Radical and far-reaching changes in Atlanta's existing school system, including conversion of the four junior high schools into combination junior high schools, co-educational, and conversion of the Henry Grady High School for Boys into a technical school for boys and girls, and conversion of Girls High school into an elementary school, will be among recommendations submitted to the board of education during the coming month by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton.

The plan was revealed Tuesday by members of the board who attended a meeting Monday night to consider the proposed $3,500,000 school bond building program of which the plan will be available in the event of a favorable outcome in the present bond litigation.

Recommendations at Monday's meeting, which was devoted to an informal discussion of plans, were that the Faith school, one of the larger of the six, which also houses the Atlanta Teachers' Normal Training school, be converted into a junior high school and that another junior high school be erected to care for the Maddox Park community.

It is believed that members of the board were favorably impressed with some of the suggestions put forward, in particular with regard to that of Mr. Sutton, who has been asked to write out his proposal and submit a copy to each of the board members.

In the event Mr. Sutton's plan is put into effect children upon graduation from the sixth grades of the grammar schools will enter upon a three-year junior high school course at a school in their particular locality and remain at the same school through a successive three-year period of high school work.

Under present systems, Superintendent Sutton pointed out, a great deal of inconvenience is experienced by pupils who must attend schools widely separated from their home localities.

Conversion of Girls High into an elementary school would eliminate the necessity of erecting new school buildings at Grant park and Ormeau, and would save considerable expenditures in carrying out the school bond issue program, it was contended.

Atlanta Teachers Seeking Other Positions, Sutton Fears

Fear that Atlanta will be depleted of a major portion of its best teaching material unless some means of stabilizing the restless condition in which Atlanta public schools are now in was expressed Tuesday by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, in an appeal to the board to decide as soon as possible whether salaries of instructors are to be slashed next year and whether schools are to be operated for a full 12-month term.

He showed in his address to the board that letters from other cities asking recommendations on the very best teachers in the Atlanta public school system have been received by me, and am inclined to believe that many of our present instructors will accept posts in other cities unless the present situation is settled in some way very soon," Mr. Sutton said.

Other members of the board, however, let them know just what to expect in the matter of salary adjustments, if there are to be any, and also regarding the question of whether the schools should have this information in order that they may decide just what they wish to do next year, and in justice to the taxpayers, they should be informed of our present situation.

Urges Prompt Action.

"I suggest that a meeting of the conference committee from the board of education and the citizens' advisory body be held as soon as possible," Mr. Sutton declared, "and that the board attempt to settle differences arising over projected economies in administration of school affairs for this year, as Harold Hirsch, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Body, Mr. W. C. Lowe, Mr. W. C. Slat and Mr. W. T. Perkins."

Members of the citizens' advisory committee, who have twice rejected proposed budgets of the school board and who demanded that an audit of 1926 accounts be made before the board attempted to settle differences arising over projected economies in administration of school affairs for this year, as Harold Hirsch, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Body, Mr. W. C. Lowe, Mr. W. C. Slat and Mr. W. T. Perkins.

DOCTOR LEAVES CENT TO HIS SON AND $1 TO WIFE

BY LEASED WIRE TO THE CONSTITUTION AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

New York, April 12.—One penny to his son and $1 to his wife was the bequest of Dr. William Schroeder, well-known Brooklyn physician whose will was offered for probate there today in surrogate's court. He left the remainder of his estate, valued at $17,000, to his housekeeper, Adelaide Sagenohl.

Dr. Schroeder's will was dated June 4, 1920. He died March 28, last, at 72.

In cutting off his son, William, Jr., with one penny, the testator said he did this "to show him that I have not forgotten his presence in the world and because he has proved himself an undutiful son and forfeited his father's love and esteem by his unbecoming behavior and inhuman treatment of his benefactor."

The wife, Charlotte, received only $1 "for her well known to her and all our friends, and because during our entire married life she has brought me little but unhappiness and has not realized the realization of her performance of the duties and obligations of a wife."

PLANS FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS REVEALED

Shanghai, April 12.—(Special.) The documents seized by northern troops last week in raids on the soviet embassy compound included detailed plans for various military operations, said an official account issued tonight by the northern authorities.

This account said that the seizures included plans for the soviet government to supply and organize cavalry in Mongolia and Manchuria under the command of General Feng Yu-Hsiang, leader of the Kuomintang army who is an avowed enemy of the Manchurian warlord and moving spirit in the northern alliance.

The documents also contained, the northern account said, reports of soviet military secret service agents in the provinces of Honan, Shensi and elsewhere, plans of the Manchurian Kuomintang army, confidential letters and reports of the Russian commander of Feng Yu-Hsiang's army, letters between military experts appointed by Moscow and the leaders of the Kuomintang and Kuomintang troops and communications between the soviet military attaché at Peking and his subordinates urging closer relations between the Kuomintang leaders and the soviet representatives.

NORTHERN CHINESE MAIN FORCES

Shanghai, April 12.—(Special.) Northern Chinese troops, it was officially reported here today, have entered Peking and are moving south along the Yangtze river, across Nanking. They entered without opposition from the Cantonese. It is said that Cantonese fugitives on the side of Nanking facing Peking have been removed.

JUDGE ROSCOE LUKE TO HOLD REVERSAL SOON AT FITZGERALD

Fitzgerald, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—Judge Roscoe Luke, of the Georgia court of appeals, will open a two weeks' reversal meeting here April 17 and will be assisted by Charles Butler, a singer. The meetings will be held in the Dickey Tobacco warehouse, with a seating capacity of over 2,000. All of the Protestant churches are cooperating in these meetings and a choir of the several churches will provide the singing.

A result of the raids and killings of Wednesday.

Fifteen armed laborers were killed in Monday night's raids which were made in search of radical literature and arms in the native quarter. One nationalist soldier also was killed. The raids were made upon direction of Bei Ching-Hsi, moderate nationalist leader and among those arrested was the chairman of the Shanghai labor union. He is being held in the French concession.

While nationalist headquarters ridiculed reports of defeat of their troops at the hands of the advancing northern troops in the vicinity of Chinkiang, natives in the Chinese districts began to prepare for a possible complete northern victory. The postoffice was closed and the telephone service was suspended. When the officials at that building fired the nationalist banner other Chinese in the city were quick to follow this action.

GENERAL STRIKE CALLED BY CHINESE UNIONS

Shanghai, China, April 12.—(Special.) A general strike was called tonight by the labor unions in protest against the raids on labor union halls by the moderate wing of the Cantonese political organizations under orders from General Chiang Kai-Shek, Cantonese radicalism, who is at odds with the radical Chinese government at Hankow.

The strike will be effective throughout the international settlement, as well as in the native city. The leaders asserted that more than 50,000 went on strike, today in answer to the call and that many more are expected to go out tomorrow.

DESTROYER TO ADD TO FLEET.

Five companies of troops will proceed to Tientsin, about May 15. Three of the companies are to replace regular forces at Tientsin, while the other two will be used to reinforce the Peking garrison and at points where soldiers may be necessary.

LEAGUE PARLEY ON ARMS FAILS

Geneva, April 12.—(United Press.) While the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission remains in session, there is no illusion about the ultimate outcome of its deliberations.

Announcement of the purpose of continued discussions, following England's rejection of the French naval disarmament plan and admission that the league's disarmament program must wait for the Coolidge naval agreement may be reached the fact remains that unanimity is impossible on the two fundamental questions which alone would make possible naval and military disarmament.

Despite the fact that there are a number of minor points on which agreement may be reached the fact remains that unanimity is impossible on the two fundamental questions which alone would make possible naval and military disarmament.

First of all, French refusal to accept the British thesis for limitation of military reserves is a stumbling block. Second, England's refusal to accept the French compromise naval proposal lies the hands of the commission as far as a completely successful result is concerned.

It seems likely now that the league council which meets June 15 will first permit public discussion of the problem and then would as the league council to seek some new basis for disarmament.

Shanghai, April 12.—(Special.) The documents seized by northern troops last week in raids on the soviet embassy compound included detailed plans for various military operations, said an official account issued tonight by the northern authorities.

This account said that the seizures included plans for the soviet government to supply and organize cavalry in Mongolia and Manchuria under the command of General Feng Yu-Hsiang, leader of the Kuomintang army who is an avowed enemy of the Manchurian warlord and moving spirit in the northern alliance.

The documents also contained, the northern account said, reports of soviet military secret service agents in the provinces of Honan, Shensi and elsewhere, plans of the Manchurian Kuomintang army, confidential letters and reports of the Russian commander of Feng Yu-Hsiang's army, letters between military experts appointed by Moscow and the leaders of the Kuomintang and Kuomintang troops and communications between the soviet military attaché at Peking and his subordinates urging closer relations between the Kuomintang leaders and the soviet representatives.

NORTHERN CHINESE MAIN FORCES

Shanghai, April 12.—(Special.) Northern Chinese troops, it was officially reported here today, have entered Peking and are moving south along the Yangtze river, across Nanking. They entered without opposition from the Cantonese. It is said that Cantonese fugitives on the side of Nanking facing Peking have been removed.

WORKMEN KILLED IN CHINESE CITY

Shanghai, April 12.—(United Press.) While national police killed 16 dead in the native Chinese city as a result of raids against extremists, the nationalist party Tuesday night killed 15 workmen in a battle with its own ranks.

Quo Tai-Chi, nationalist foreign commissioner in Shanghai, declared a fight to the finish against extremists within his own party.

Reports of northern advances south in the direction of the Yangtze river were confirmed and it was admitted that the nationalist government was in a crisis when their executive session was held in Nanking Wednesday.

Mills Prepares Lakewood Park For Opening Day

Proof conclusive that spring is here to stay was seen Tuesday when Oscar Mills, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association and his corps of workmen took the field with a new zeal to have every detail ready for the formal opening of Lakewood amusement park at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The big gates swing open promptly at that hour, and Lakewood is ready for its biggest season. Some of the greatest amusement features in the entire country have been booked for the season.

And Lakewood, the beautiful Lakewood of last season, is more alluring and inviting than ever this year. Bare spaces have been resodded and green have supplanted the red clay. Dogwood trees are in full bloom, and spring flowers and shrubbery are in evidence on every side.

Lovers of nature and those who are seeking amusement alike will find attraction there.

The 122nd regiment band will furnish music for special occasions at the park. Mr. Mills confided Tuesday, and Atlanta and the park are to have a feature of which no city south of Baltimore can boast in the Aida trumpet quartet, which will be an entertainment attraction.

A new design, and which probably will be dubbed the Apache, will be opened free to the public for the entire season when the park is officially opened Saturday. A great orthophonic machine will furnish music.

Concessionaires from New Orleans to Fort Myers, Fla., and Maine, Tuesday were busy putting the equipment into spick and span condition to welcome Atlantans and visitors to the amusement.

Mr. Mills and his corps of workmen have Lakewood in better condition than in the history of the organization, experts declared Tuesday, and predictions for the biggest season in the annals of its existence were frequent.

Modern craftsmen have caught the charm of Early American Furniture in these.....

New Blue Ribbon Beds of Steel

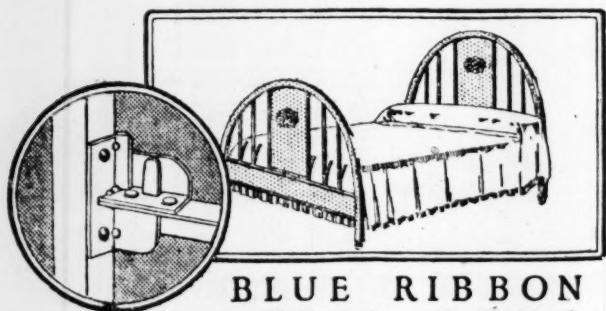

Never was the vogue for early American things so widespread—particularly furniture, and rightly so, for the exquisite simplicity of the furniture of this period exemplifies the spirit and character of their times. It is from the best examples of early American designs that modern Blue Ribbon craftsmen have created the "Priscilla," the new Blue Ribbon Bed of steel, illustrated above. It exemplifies all of the traditional grace of the period that inspired it. Wrought in steel it is finished in a faithful reproduction of the favored woods of these early American artisans—Maple, walnut and mahogany. The simplicity of the head and foot panels are made more charming by a touch of antiqued color, in the hand-applied decoration. The "Priscilla" is only one of more than 50 new models of Blue Ribbon steel beds. You'll like the distinctive Colonial designs—"Yorktown,"

"Cavalier" and the colorful Duo-chrome finishes—Oriole, Moonstone, Antique-Walnut, Clouded Jade, equally as well. The exclusive "satin-smooth" Blue Ribbon finish of all Blue Ribbon steel beds is baked-on and hand-rubbed. It cannot chip or crack. A lifetime of use will not dull its original beauty. The Blue Ribbon "Satin-soft" finish requires practically no attention—needs no polishing or rubbing, an occasional damp cloth restores all of its lustre. And price need no longer keep you from enjoying the beauty of these beds. In contrast to the labored slowness of hand production, these beds of steel are made entirely—(except of course the finish) on cost saving machines. This modern method combined with great quantity production make possible prices that are astonishingly low. Ask any one of the dealers listed below to show you the new Blue Ribbon Beds.

For more than 40 years the Southern Spring Bed Company has specialized in the production of better sleep equipment. For 40 years our designers and sleep engineers have researched every possible phase of bed, mattress and spring construction that would help make sleep more restful. We have always contended that sound, restful, refreshing sleep was a matter of complete relaxation, brought about by the comfort of the sleep equipment used.

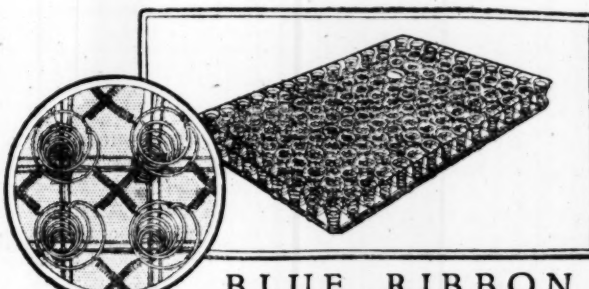

BLUE RIBBON STEEL BEDS

The Blue Ribbon patented, exclusive steel corner lock, holds the bed rigid, prevents loose creaking corners. It is the greatest single advance in bed making in the past 10 years.

Now scientists have proven the value of our contentions. With delicate and highly sensitized instruments, psychologists can now "grade" sleep. Hundreds of tests have been made in various

American Universities. These tests have shown that with poor sleeping equipment the sleeper tosses about, dreams, rolls and altogether spends a miserable night. But the unfortunate part of it is that the sleeper is not aware of it. For poor sleep equipment never keeps one entirely awake. And the user is only conscious of it in a feeling of laziness and tiredness upon arising.

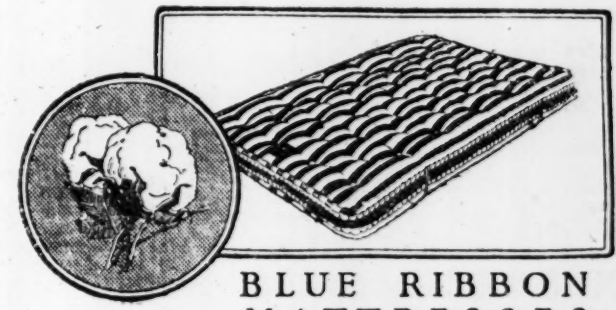

These tests have proven that to sleep well means to relax completely. And it is this inducement to complete relaxation that makes Blue Ribbon sleep equipment more restful.

Note the resilient coil construction of Blue Ribbon Bed Springs. Blue Ribbon coils are re-tempered to the truestness of watch spring steel. They never lose their restful buoyancy.

Each unit of Blue Ribbon sleep equipment has a definite superiority. Each one of them will add comfort to your sleep, but only when they are used together do you experience the enjoyment of sleep at its best. That is why we can make you this proposition: Go to any one of the dealers listed below, purchase a Blue Ribbon Bed—They are made in more than 50 different models, so you are sure to find one to suit your taste and purse. Then purchase a Blue Ribbon Bed Spring—there are seven different styles and prices—then top this with a Blue Ribbon Mattress of new, soft cotton, encased in the attractive ticking. Have your dealer deliver this perfect sleep unit to you. Sleep on it a week, no—a month, a year, if you are not delighted with the new sleep comfort it brings you, return it to your dealer and he is authorized to refund your money.

NOTE: To be sure that you secure genuine Blue Ribbon sleep equipment, each genuine unit is plainly identified. Blue Ribbon Beds have the Blue Ribbon trademark. The Blue Ribbon tag is on the Blue Ribbon Springs—and be sure it's there—because all blue springs are not Blue Ribbon. Blue Ribbon Mattresses have the Blue Ribbon label sewn on, and the name Blue Ribbon is imprinted in the ticking. The dealers whose names appear below know the advantage of using Blue Ribbon Beds, Mattresses and Springs together. You will find a representative display of this perfect sleep equipment in their stores.

'Clean-Up, Paint-Up' Week Is Given Splendid Start

Tuesday was a busy day for the paint brush, the mop and the broom in Atlanta, for on that day the city redoubled its vigor in the annual "clean-up and paint-up" week, with Mayor I. N. Hays officially bearing the banner of beautification and sanitation.

The mayor last Saturday issued a formal proclamation calling upon citizens to do all within their power to make the week a success from the standpoint of cleaning Atlanta of every unsightly spot and vesting it in a spotless Easter garment.

Enrolled in the movement for a cleaner city are a number of prominent civic organizations, among them being the Atlanta Woman's club and the City Federation of Women's clubs, whose leaders and members are pledged to put "clean-up and paint-up week" over the top.

HARTSFIELD RAPS NEW CHARTER MOVE

That the same "bunch" who got the school system of Atlanta into its present financial predicament and threatened suspension are solidly supporting the proposed city charter was an opinion expressed by Alderman W. B. Hartsfield in debate with F. Marvin Underwood before the Atlanta Retail Food Dealers, Tuesday night, in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Contending further that there is no provision in the proposed charter to prevent members of one ward from composing the entire school board, or to keep one ward from having four representatives in council to one from each of the other wards, Alderman Hartsfield intimated that the method of electing councilmen, as provided in the charter under discussion, might result in outside influence controlling the city politics.

"Every one knows," he declared, "that in city-wide elections—and all councilmanic elections would be city-wide under the proposed plan—an important factor is that financial resources available. And I know of certain interests that would be willing to spend $100,000 or more in elections to 'own' the city."

Showing the businesslike advantages of the city-manager form of government and other alleged benefits to be obtained through the new charter, Mr. Underwood gave a brief history of the three fundamental types of government, which he included in the political, commission and city-manager.

He contended that the last of the universally acclaimed short ballot, distinct executive and legislative authorities and highly efficient financial safeguards.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; THREE WOMEN DIE

Charlotte, N. C., April 12.—(AP)—Three women, traveling to their homes in New England after spending the winter in Florida, were killed and another woman and a man injured today when the Crescent Limited, fast Southern railway passenger train, struck their automobile at Love's Crossing near here today.

Bodies of the women were badly mangled. The impact threw the locomotive of the all-steel train off the track and the limited was delayed until a wrecking crew could arrive and replace it. Nobody on the train was hurt.

The dead are: Miss Annie O'Brien, Boston, Mass.; Miss Anna Snyder, Lowell, Mass.; Miss Laura Flynn, Boston, Mass.

The injured: J. E. Thompson, South London, Surrey, England.

Mrs. Anna Barber, Boston, Mass.; Lacy S. Tallock, of Charlotte, who reached the scene a minute or two after the accident, picked up the living and brought them to a hospital here.

Witnesses said that Thompson, who owned and drove the small sedan in which the party was riding, came up to the crossing behind another car. The first automobile stopped and Thompson swung around it in front of the speeding train. All of the persons in the automobile were thrown clear, the three women falling under the locomotive.

Mrs. Barber was able to talk after her wounds were dressed. She said the party left St. Petersburg, Fla., where the dead women had been working as waitresses at the Park House. They were en route home.

Mrs. Barber said she was going to Philadelphia. Thompson said she did not know the train until it was "right on top of us." "Everybody screamed when we saw the train would strike us, but that was all we could do," she said.

"Nobody had time to move from their seats." He said the locomotive struck the back end of the car, which was thrown into a ditch.

TENNESSEE RIVER DAM IS OPPOSED

Columbus, Miss., April 12.—(AP)—That the Mobile basin and Tennessee River Improvement association is squarely against any proposition looking toward the building of a dam across the Tennessee river at any point between the mouth of Bear creek and Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals, was the sentiment voiced by the association meeting here Tuesday.

A strong endorsement of the proposed canal connecting the Tennessee and Tombigbee rivers through usage of waters from Bear creek, followed the decision of the convention against the dam site. Improving the Tombigbee river channel between Demopolis, Ala., and the headwaters would render the stream navigable to steamboats and reduce the hazard of floods the association believed.

The association decided to be represented by its officers and directors at a hearing before the United States district engineer at Florence, Ala., on April 19, when delegations from towns and cities in the area will also be present to discuss the proposal of the dam on the Tennessee river.

The gathering Tuesday went on record as declaring that if the dam is erected between the mouth of Bear creek and Wilson dam it would render impossible the proposed new waterway to the Gulf of Mexico via the Tombigbee river.

Officers of the association elected Tuesday were Senator John Craft, Mobile, president; L. P. May, first vice president; T. H. Henry, Columbus; C. L. Tabbs, Aberdeen; Percy Coleman, Demopolis, vice presidents.

E. L. May, Mohr, secretary; Leon E. Schwarts, Mobile; R. E. Johnson, Columbus; Eugene Sykes, Aberdeen; C. H. Harrison, Amory; J. M. Brown, Fulton; J. C. Jordan, Inka, and W. S. Sprout, Demopolis, members of the board of directors.

A number of prominent Alabama and Mississippi state senators addressed the gathering.

Dry Progressive For Democrats, Says Meredith

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, April 12.—)

The democrats will nominate a progressive and a dry, according to Edwin T. Meredith, secretary of agriculture in the cabinet of President Wilson, in an interview here today.

Mr. Meredith indicated that he was opposed to Governor Al Smith, of New York, as the democratic nominee, but that he would favor W. G. McAdoo or Senator Allee Pomerene, of Ohio.

"It would be suicidal for the democrats to be anything but dry," he told interviewers. "He will be one acceptable candidate the party will pick will be dry and progressive," he told interviewers.

Mr. Meredith urged price-fixing by the government for farm products else the farmers would become peasants.

"We have no agricultural policy in this country. It is logical to believe that if we do not put agriculture on a business basis, we can look forward to pauperism on the farms," Mr. Meredith said.

Woman Admits Deserting Mate And Baby Here

Mrs. Louise Wilson, 22, who gave her address as 332 Bussey street, Atlanta, when arrested with two male companions in Pittsburgh, abandoned a four months' old baby in Atlanta, according to a confession credited to her in dispatches from the Pennsylvania city Tuesday.

Mrs. Wilson, alias Mrs. Nita Wilson, was arrested in Pittsburgh Monday with two men, who gave their names as Floyd Worley, 22, alias Jackson Shipley, of 15 1/2 street, Atlanta, and William Smith, 18, alias Banks Hamby, of 128 Flat Shoals street, Atlanta. They were in a machine thought to have been stolen in Florida. The trio was turned over to federal department on charges of having violated the Mann act. Mrs. Wilson admitted, according to testimony from Pittsburgh police, that she had a husband and a child here, but declared, they said, that the marriage was distasteful both to her and her husband and that she thought "it would be all right to marry Worley without a divorce." Worley held the same belief, he said, and reiterated that he wanted to marry the woman. The two men claimed that they had bought the car, in which they had traveled from Georgia, from a man in Florida. Mrs. Wilson said she had married her alleged abandoned child's father here in October and that the baby was born two months later. The enforced marriage in October, she said, was not a happy one. Nothing could be learned at the addresses given of any of the three arrested persons.

LEVEES HOLDING FLOODED WATERS OF MISSISSIPPI

Memphis, April 12.—(P)—Flood waters of the Mississippi moved southward today without damaging levees and tonight guardians of the levee system repeated expressions of confidence that embankments would hold. Tomorrow a slight decline is predicted by the local weather bureau. Somewhat improved conditions were indicated in the White and St. Francis basins in Arkansas. The St. Francis is expected to climb until Saturday but levee crews are guarding the dikes and the river will not cause major damage, it was believed at Marked Tree. Operators of industrial plants at Marked Tree have agreed to stop work and send all employees to strengthen the embankments wherever a threat may appear. More rains today and forecast of more showers tonight and tomorrow promised to bring further delay to planting crops throughout the valley.

Operators of industrial plants at Marked Tree have agreed to stop work and send all employees to strengthen the embankments wherever a threat may appear. Crackers Win Opening Game of Season From Vols, 10 to 2

BY TOM THOMPSON.
Staff Sport Correspondent.

ASHVILLE, Tenn., April 12.—A spasmodic sun threw a silhouette of shadow across Sulphur Dell this afternoon just in time to glimpse a tale on the black and white scoreboard that told of horrors to a town called Nashville, and of glory to a town called Atlanta. It told in round numbers how Atlanta had almost blanketed Nashville's christening of a new ball park, how Bert Niehoff's stickers had pounded their way to a victory, how the Southern league, as far as these two communities are concerned, had been opened and how the Crackers, menaced by a sea of mud and water, had baffled their way to a 10-2 victory behind Ray Francis with two Cracker mistakes on the judgment book.

It was an auspicious opening. The Nashville field, a beautiful new park, was filled almost to capacity, while the old stiles clicked a tuneful melody of some 9,000 persons and the Crackers clicked a tuneful melody of 10 hits off Ernie Alten and George "Whiskers" Gilbert in nine frightful stanzas.

At the outset it was portender versus portender. They portended each other for a while, but Francis, of much the better of the deal, giving up a total of seven hits for two runs in nine innings, while Alten was nipped for just that many hits in the five and one-third spasm that he slipped.

"Whiskers," who succeeded Alten on the hilllock in the sixth frame, turned in a card that was much better, but still not so hot. In the remaining three and two-thirds periods this gentleman with the multitudinous hirsute adornment fresh from the House of David, but without all the attendant scandal, gave up three hits that were not turned into runs at any time. In other words, he shut the bachelors from Atlanta out clean, but not without giving up a reasonable quota of hits.

Threatened by rain. Right up until time for the tilt, there was a great amount of uncertainty, with rain falling in great splashes throughout the day. About 11 o'clock, however, the clouds took a pension, went to their habitat, wherever that may be, and remained there for the afternoon. Faced with a field that could have had no peer

The biggest improvement with the Reds this season will be in the pitching strength. It will be recalled we lost out by a whisker last season when several regulars became injured. With Art Nehf back in shape, Pete Donohue, Eppa Rixey, Carl Mays, Jackie May, Fred Lucas, Roy McKee and Ray Kolp I think I have the strongest staff in the league. The outfield will see a new star in the league in Walter Christensen, and played regularly in centerfield between Bressler and Walker. I expect him to develop into a phenom. The race should be close. It can't be much more interesting than the one of a year ago. The Cardinals have a good ball club. The Pirates and Giants appear to have improved and the Cubs always make it interesting.

Following the fracas Skipper Niehoff, pleased with himself and his ball club and his victory with the world in general, announced that he would put a right-handed flipper into the fray tomorrow. Of course the right-hander will be Tom Rogers or, anyway, that is just what the skipper said.

The southpaw sandwich as it is locally called, which has been the thing order of the Vols, may fare well off a regular kind of flipper. But if they are not able to make their hits count for more than they could then the Crackers will do well. The southpaw sandwich allured to is the way Jim Hamilton, the Volunteer manager, had arranged his hitters.

He has four off-side slammers on the second club and he puts them between right-handed hitters all the way through, providing a dangerous spot for right or left-handers as the case may be, if one considers the ancient adage, positively disproven today, that a left-handed smacker can't hit a left side hurler and side hurler.

But, no matter, Fred Johnson, another right-handed nugget slinger, will be on the mound for the Vols today.

Beauty and Virtue.

Beauty, like virtue, may be its own reward, but it scored a complete kavo at the Athletic club Tuesday night when Pat Stephens, handsome tendor of the A. A. C. basketball team, was elected captain for next season, and Jimmy Latimer, the modern Don Juan, was named alternate. The two beauties in question mix basketball playing with their duties of charming the fair sex and that may be another reason for their election.

The dinner, tendered by the Athletic club to the members of the team, was not the largest in the world from point of numbers and the soup and fish were gastronomical rather than sartorial, but from the standpoint of before dinner banter and after dinner oratory there were nothing but things doing every minute.

There were no gold basketballs presented to the members of the team and, in the words of Joe Bean, "We don't want gold basketballs unless we can boast of an undefeated season." And while we are on the subject of Joe Bean let it be said that every amateur athlete in this neck of the woods would have done well to hear some of the other things he let drop Tuesday night.

There isn't much of the orator about Coach Bean, but it was noticeable that when he was speaking the ice cream stood unattended—even though it was pink and full of raspberries (the ice cream, not the oratory). When some men speak of good sportsmanship—it has a hollow ring, but when Coach Bean fondles his glasses and talks of "running any man out of the club who is guilty of any dirty play" there is something about the announcement which makes it ring true. The coach isn't big and he doesn't talk big, but when he says things he usually means just those things. Ask the man who owns one.

Al Doonan, whose fame as a leader in athletics is as widespread as profanity in the army, spoke in appreciation of what the A. A. C. basketball team has done for the club, and if there was any question of Al's popularity with the listeners, that doubt was dispelled when he resumed his seat after his usual 12 words and a bow. If someone had nominated Al for president of anything from the W. C. T. U. to the Republic of France, he would have been elected by a standing vote.

Naturally when a man is elected captain of a team he is expected to say how glad he is. Pat Stephens did that, but if he was not in earnest he should sue his face for libel, because Pat was the picture of joy when his name was called after the counting of the ballot. Rufus Bass, the man who was captain of the last team and who, like your correspondent, has reached the age when he wants to argue with any man who calls him old, also had something to say, and, like all the other speakers of the evening, he lauded the team for its work during the past season.

Digging up old scores from the dim and distant past, Steve Hartney, the running mate of Scrappy Sullivan on the A. A. C. teams of a year and back to 1897 or thereabouts, spouted a bit of wisdom when he passed a bunch of bouquets in the general direction of Joe Bean and Al Doonan. It was Steve who hit the apple on the crown with his analysis of A. A. C. success by saying, "You can't beat a basketball team on paper; it takes forty minutes and five good men on the court to do that."

It might be said in passing that judging from the look of the gentlemen seated at the table Tuesday night, Coach Bean and the A. A. C. probably will have another winner next season. Another two or three days and the spring practice will be ended, but plans are already formulated for the coming season, and if Mr. Bean fails to put out a winner he will be deviating greatly from his usual course.

Mrs. Wilson Wins After Long Struggle

BY WHITNER CARY.

The first day of match play in the Woman's Atlanta Golf association handicap tournament that is being held this week over the East Lake course produced several massacres, a few close encounters and one golfing marathon that wandered to the 35th green before handshaking was in order.

The female of the species being, to quote the words of a well known dispenser of verse more deadly than the male, it is the usual custom of golf matches containing the feminine contingent to terminate within the prescribed 18 holes. Sometimes history records that the battle is continued beyond the 18th green when the score card showed her two contestants prolonging the argument to the neighborhood of the 36th hole.

But Tuesday saw tradition smashed over the links of East Lake when Mrs. Tommie Wilson, the golfing zephyr from Ansley Park, and Mrs. W. D. Doak, carrying the colors of the Atlanta Athletic club, struggled through 35 holes of good, mediocre and indifferent golf. At the 35th hole it was the hand of Mrs. Doak that was extended in congratulatory victory.

A victory that saw two as splendid comebacks on the part of Mrs. Wilson as golf often records. Although in receipt of eight strokes from her opponent, Mrs. Wilson appeared hopelessly beaten at the 12th green when the score card showed her five down and but six holes left to play.

Here occurred one of those startling and spectacular charges that are beautiful in theory but so seldom recorded in actuality. Mrs. Wilson won five of those six holes. This superb brace plus a half at the 18th extended the match into nine more. During this nine Mrs. Wilson appeared well on the road to defeat as when the two opponents stood on the 5th tee she was two down. A 10-footer found the cup which aided by one of her strokes, gave her a win. She annexed the seventh and eight to view the club house hole one up. Here her third found the ditch and Mrs. Doak squared the match.

The concluding chapter in this prolonged debate saw Mrs. Wilson take the lead at the 12th, increase it at the 13th, and receive the good wishes of her opponent at the 17th green when a half was the best Mrs. Doak could do to stall off defeat.

The only other match going to the 18th hole was the one in which Mrs. Grenade of Ansley Park, gained a one-up decision over Mrs. L. H. Beck. Mrs. Clarence Bradley of Ansley Park, found the dual factors of the golf displayed by Mrs. Ray Burns and a 15 stroke handicap rather a strong combination, but finally emerged at the winning end of a hard fought two-up victory.

The following are the results in all flights.

First Flight.
Miss Margaret Maddox defeated Mrs. William Lobbe, 5-4.
Mrs. L. W. Grenade defeated Mrs. L. H. Beck, 1 up.
Mrs. Tommie Wilson, defeated Mrs. W. D. Doak, 2-1, 35 holes.
Mrs. Clarence Bradley defeated Mrs. Ray Burns, 2 up.

Second Flight.
Miss Jimmie Pattillo defeated Mrs. Kurfess, 16.
Mrs. A. Guy Smith defeated Mrs. C. W. Beck, by default.
Mrs. M. S. Menzies defeated Mrs. J. D. Nicholson, by default.
Mrs. Eleanor McAniff defeated Mrs. C. E. Williamson, 6-5.

Third Flight.
Mrs. F. B. Porter defeated Mrs. Welch, by default.
All others in this flight drew eyes.

The following are today's pairings in the second round. The figure after the name of the player denotes the number of strokes that player will give her opponent.

Boy Sets Record Over Bob Jones Course With 68

Sarasota, Fla., April 12.—(AP)—Harley Greenamyre, 18-year-old champion of Sarasota county, broke the course record at the Bobby Jones Golf course here when he shot a 68 for the 18 holes. Bobby Jones played the course and his best scores have been 69 and 73. Bill Hartsborn, Chicago professional, who wintered in Sarasota, holds the "pro" record for the course with a 68. Harley missed a two-foot putt on the eighteenth hole for a 67. He shot five birdies during the round and took three over par on one hole when he sliced his drive into the rough. The course is operated by the city and was named

BREAKING THE RECORD

Here's one for the fishermen. The fly casting record (4 ounce ball) is 495 feet, 4 inches.

A record for friends who "stick!"

Plenty of cigarettes make friends who "swear by" the brand for a few months—only to drop away. But it takes real merit to make friends who stick!

Piedmont has held a place among the five leading brands for 20 consecutive years—and is still going strong. Purity, richness, unmatched mildness; all golden Virginia tobacco—that's the answer.

Note. With the sole exception of our celebrated Richmond Straight Cuts, Piedmont is the only "Virginia tobacco" cigarette enjoying a national sale.

Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER.

SYNOPSIS.

Piers Tancred and his wife, Sophy, have just moved into the Villa Mona at Bordighera on the Italian Riviera and they are entertaining at luncheon for the first time in their new home. Their guests are Lilla Brant and Willie Mopett. Willie announces that he has secured Alan Brooke, a famous sculptor, for his dinner party that night. Sophy shows signs of agitation at the name.

INSTALLMENT III.

Then the war. (O, blame it on the war!)

"Only wait, Sophy." That was merely an echo of words pleading down through the long years. After he was called, her Mrs. Tancred now, laying stress as it were on her being the property of Piers.

Sophy began quickly to plead for herself, to drag old quarrels out of their dusty cupboards and show Alan Brooke how he had failed and hurt her and how—but there was one thing she couldn't explain.

"You divorced me, you insisted on that," he said, cutting in upon her dramatic recital.

"It was temper, Alan."

"And you've married again. Was that temper?"

Sophy's voice sank to a slaking whisper. Who on earth could explain a Piers Tancred to an Alan Brooke? But she tried.

"I didn't marry until—there wasn't anything else for me, unless—"

There was no good on the stage. I always meant to go back to you, to beg you to take me back, but when you were reported wounded and missing, and it seemed certain you had been killed, it didn't seem to matter any more what I did. I was ill and hadn't a penny and there was nobody in the world I could turn to. Alan, I thought by this time you would have forgiven me. Why, you might have married again, yourself."

"As a matter of fact, I did," he replied. "That woman who opened the door to you is my wife."

A feeling of revulsion swept Sophy. What she herself had done—and one's own shortcomings are excusable—she had carried with her for those many years the sentimental conviction that Alan Brooke had been true to the memory of their great love, for though stony it had been a great love. In her own way, she had been true.

But he was married, and to that peasant woman whom everybody in Bordighera imagined was merely his servant. At least Lilla Brant had made no mention of a wife, and if anybody knew it would be Lilla.

"Why are you surprised?" he asked. "It didn't startle me very much to learn that you had married again."

"That's a lie, Alan," Sophy said flatly.

And because she said that, the truth like a naked sword flashed between them showing clearly where they stood, where they had always stood since boy and girl days: Alan and Sophy, secretly betrothed in their teens, rashly marrying at 20, loving each other passionately, and capable of mad, unreasonable jealousies; two young hot heads parted by a tempest of their own making. Perhaps it had been more Sophy's fault than Alan's—but who could really say? It had happened, it was done, and now they faced each other as across "a great gulf fixed," conscious of their bond, Sophy to her husband, Alan Brooke to his contending.

Sharp memories were stirred by the knowledge that once they had belonged to each other.

"Alan, I have always loved you. You're the only man on earth I ever could love."

And he: "You tortured me, Sophy; you drove me mad. My God, why did you do it?"

"I didn't mean to. I tortured myself most of all. O, Alan!"

Little Lilla, blonde Sophy with her wide gray eyes and her delicate arched brows of perpetual astonishment; her pursed lips inviting, tantalizing; her Sophy with a hidden bruise on her shoulder and the nightmare of Piers always hovering over her. To leave Alan with his peasant wife and to go back to the Villa Mona and Piers—that was the fate of Sophy Tancred. No—a thousand times, no! Alan and she belonged to each other and to nobody else. Hadn't she always known that some day they would meet again, must meet again? People who were so vital to each other never could be really parted. For years a storm of rebellion had been brewing in Sophy's heart. She had paid so dearly for her mistakes that it seemed the debt must be canceled by this time.

Alan was holding her hands, bending over her, his lips touching her hair. Yes, he loved her. She didn't need him to put it into words. Their love was the strongest thing on earth.

and now that they had come together again it would sweep everything else away, even Piers Tancred. Alan was saying something, and she scarcely breathed once she began to comprehend. Alan Brooke was telling her that he had a little son, in and that woman's, a little boy of four years who lived with his peasant grandparents in the mountains beyond Turin. Alan and his contending spent the summers there and who little John was old enough he was to be sent to an English school. The mother was proud, too proud to let it be known that she was Alan Brooke's wife, lest the English people should think scorn of him.

With a wrenching twist Sophy released her hands and backed away. She felt she was floating, that she was going to faint. Harsh and cruel words rose to her lips, but something prevented her from hurling them at Alan Brooke. She might have reminded him that her own little baby, though merely a girl and thus doubtless inferior to the son of even a contending, had died because of the terrible heat in Paris that some sort of year of his birth; died when it might have lived had Alan turned his back on art and decided to earn a little money to send them to the seaside.

"I know what you're thinking," he said quickly. "What a blunderer I am!"

She took a handkerchief from her pocket and dabbed her eyes, avoiding looking at him.

"We are strangers," she said quietly, "but I try to understand that. Just for a moment I—well, I wasn't quite sane and I imagined impossible things. It seemed to me that nothing mattered but us, and that we could do as we liked. You see, I quite overlooked the possibility of your being fond of your wife."

"I am fond of her," Alan Brooke said gravely. "I would be very grateful if I weren't. Christina has been good to me and I owe her more than I can explain in a brief moment. I owe her more than I can ever possibly repay. I am her debtor for the rest of my life, although she would be the last person to say so."

Again hot words rose to Sophy's lips and it was quite a struggle this time to hold them back. Had she but faintly guessed what Alan was to tell her, she wouldn't have imperiled herself with Piers by this mad adventure. She was so desperately afraid of Piers; physically afraid. One of these days he would probably murder her in a jealous frenzy, and that conviction gave her moments of craven panic. But nobody knew how cruel he could be except herself, although she sometimes thought Lilla Brant suspected Lilla and Piers were such pals, and more than once Lilla had got her into trouble by unwittingly misreporting something to Piers.

"I'll be going, now," she said. "I suppose we shall meet again tonight at the opera. My husband and I must know anything about this—that I've been here, or that I've ever seen you before. He knows, of course, that I was married before, but he thinks I was a widow—as I rather thought so myself at the time. I married under the name of Marbury, my stage name. Piers doesn't like to remember that I was ever married to anybody except him."

Sophy spoke almost conventionally, as though she had convinced herself that Alan and she were strangers, or scarcely more, but he caught her by the wrist as roughly as Piers might have done and drew her to him.

"I love you, Sophy—love you, love you! You don't talk to me like that when we've been everything in the world to each other. I won't have it, and I won't meet that man you've tied yourself to. No, I won't be at the Doria tonight. But we've got to see each other again somewhere soon. There are dozens of many things to talk over. I can't let you go again—I can't. Now that you've come back into my life, I won't let you go."

"You're raving, Alan. Don't you understand? Why did you say yourself?"

"I know I'm raving, but that doesn't matter. Yes, there's Christina and the boy, and there's that horrible man you're living with—Mopett says he's chaste. You've got to leave him, Sophy. Why, you and I—ever since we were born, almost—I can't be sure of the first time I saw you, but I couldn't have been more than 12 or 14. Wasn't I at a church fête or something? Why, you and I—Sophy—it's always been you and I from the beginning of time."

New Orleans, April 12.—Spot cotton closed quiet and unchanged. Sales 7,500. Low middling 13.15; receipts 4,620; stock 559,105.

New York, April 12.—(P)—Continuation of unsettled weather in the south and apprehensions of further delays in farm work, appeared to be reflected in the steadier ruling of the cotton market today. The price of July contracts advanced to 14.17, 10 points net higher and closed at 14.40, the general market closing steady at net advances of 8 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 5 points. Early cables from Liverpool were disappointing, but the market there recovered partially before trading was started, and there was some buying locally on reports of further rain in the Mississippi valley. The bullish features did not seem strong enough to stimulate any general or aggressive demand, but offerings were light and prices worked higher.

A private report pointing to a reduction of 15 to 20 per cent in the acreage, including a decrease of 12 per cent in the acreage of Texas and 16 per cent in Oklahoma was probably a factor in the advance.

May sold up to 14.19 and October to 14.68 in late trading, net advances of about 8 to 9 points. The close was within a point or two of the best.

Very little discussion was heard as to the probable showing of the report on boll weevil emergence expected tomorrow, but there may have been some uncertainty in that respect which, as well as the approach of the Easter holidays, had a restricting effect on business. The report of the census bureau on supply and distribution for March is expected at the opening on Thursday, and expectations of full figures may have helped the tone of the general market, particularly in late trading.

Private cables indicated that hedging and Bombay selling in Liverpool had been absorbed by trade calling and London buying, but reported continued small demand for cloths and yarns.

Exports today 4,281 bales, making 9,102,327 so far this season. Port receipts today 31,565. U. S. port stocks 2,275,415.

COTTON MOVES UP AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, April 12.—(P)—Cotton prices moved upward today in the New Orleans market under the impetus of buying, stimulated by the favorable weather in the belt, the prospect of continued rains and favorable Liverpool cables. The close was steady with net gains for the day of 8 to 9 points.

Cables were 1 to 2 penny points better than due and rain was indicated by the weather map. Under this influence first trades were 5 to 6 points up, although prices eased off immediately until the call to establish the loss of the day at 14.20. By 1:30, 14.35 for July and 14.62 for October, 1 to 3 points below the opening.

Prospects for more rain brought a rally of 15 to 20 points in the afternoon. May sold up to 14.25, July to 14.41 and October to 14.68, 8 to 9 points above the previous close.

Settling trading after a couple of points of the gain but prices firm, again near the end and duplicated the highs, establishing a new one for July at 14.42.

Exports were 1,845 bales.

TRADE SLACKENS IN BOND MARKET

DAILY BOND AVERAGES.

Tues.	Mon.
Ten first grade rails	96.25
Ten public utilities	96.75
Ten industrials	101.36

Combined year ago	94.74
Total bond sales (par value)	$12,453,000.

New York, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—While the volume of trading continued to fall off sharply in the bond market today, a brisk demand for high-grade investment securities gave the general market a firm undertone.

Competition offered by the new $30,000,000 City of Milan 6 1/2 per cent issue, which was promptly sold today, and the $25,000,000 New South Wales issue which came on the market yesterday, led to softening prices for bonds of high yield.

A fair amount of buying of French issues, particularly such railroad issues as Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean 6s and Eastern Railway 5s brought only slightly improved prices. The foreign list as a whole was irregular.

New bond prices for the year, or longer, were reached by Louisville & Nashville issues and by St. Paul convertible 5s. Profit-taking caused a 2-point recession in Rio de Janeiro 5 1/2 per cent bonds, which were also under selling pressure.

Heaviness characterized public utility and industrial issues. American Writing Paper Co. certificates gained more than a point to a new high.

United States government issues continued reactionary, with selling of second, third and fourth Liberty bonds especially noticeable.

The $55,000,000 Duquesne Light company 4 1/2 per cent gold bonds will be offered tomorrow at prices to yield about 4.78 per cent.

STOCK MARKET IS MIXED AS PERFECTLY NATURAL RESULT OF PERFECTLY NATURAL PROFIT-TAKING AFTER STRONG WEEK.

New York, April 12.—Making a new high record for all time in the average price of 50 stocks Saturday and again yesterday, the stock market was mixed, today as is frequently the case on Tuesday in a bull market. Profit-taking on Tuesday after a strong week ending closing and a strong week beginning is a perfectly logical and natural development. Despite this natural profit-taking today, partly resulting from a weekly increase of $36,000,000 in brokers' loans and the general market a 100 per cent for call money the stock market acted very well, indicating that it was not through making new highs for the year and all time before.

The day's market history there never has been a time during a bull stock market when there was so little information to be had as to who owned the market. The individual stocks. This widely recognized fact caused much discussion today of a front page story carried by the Associated Press, that the market was being run by a few individuals.

What has happened? Freeport-Texas is. Some very shrewd and successful traders in the stock market began to accumulate this stock two or three years ago in anticipation of better selling contracts, bringing in the larger earnings now being reported. The continued advance in the stock market has been a very recent thing, resulting first in a sensational price advance and then in placing of stop-loss orders by those who accumulated the stock at much lower prices and hence had large paper profits. A raid on the stock yesterday and again today depressing prices to a point below the stop-loss orders, thus causing the sharp break.

An order placed by a holder of long stock good until called to sell, the paper profit to a certain figure is called by Wall Street a "stop-loss order." In the case of Freeport-Texas such orders meant the taking of the paper profit and the loss of the stock. The "stop-loss order" originated in the practice of placing a selling order a couple of points more or less below the price at which the stock was bought. The holder of the stock, who believed the market would decline in which even, loss is limited. Such orders do limit a loss but frequently cause the loss of stock, which eventually is sold at a lower price. Widespread use of stop-loss orders in a stock market creates a situation where the stock is open to attack by those who have been buying at much lower prices and hence had large paper profits. A raid on the stock yesterday and again today depressing prices to a point below the stop-loss orders, thus causing the sharp break.

It is only necessary to go back a few years to the days when annual meetings of stockholders of corporations whose shares are traded in on the stock exchange were held in some back office with only a few officials present, enough to handle the proxies that had been obtained.

These meetings are being attended more and more by stockholders and by stockholders who ask leading questions such as those that last April Chairman Gary of the Steel corporation, resulting despite Gary's protest in a 40 per cent stock dividend. Atchison is one of the few stocks that made a new high today for the year. It is the case of Atchison means for all time. At 152 a stock paying 10 per cent dividend offers an income return of 5 1/2 per cent. That is a new high for call money. The new high for call money.

Sinclair Oil. Sinclair Oil makes a splendid report for 1926, the annual statement made public today, showing gross earnings of $191,000,000 in round figures against $150,000,000 for 1925, $123,000,000 for 1924 and $107,000,000 for 1923. The net income for 1926 was $48,000,000, against $38,000,000 for 1925, $24,000,000 for 1924 and $18,000,000 for 1923. The dividend for 1926 was $1.25 per share, against $1.00 for 1925, $0.75 for 1924 and $0.50 for 1923.

With its record on existing conditions in the oil industry, Wall Street studied the 1926 Sinclair report today not with the expectation of seeing how the statement would be received stockholders, but with the expectation of seeing how the company's position to weather existing conditions in the oil industry. Cash at the end of 1926 stood at $5,720,000, against $3,720,000 a year ago, $2,140,000 two years ago, and $7,300,000 three years ago. For the years named accounts and notes receivable were $14,414,000, $13,351,000, $10,114,000 and $8,127,000, respectively. The total assets of the company were $29,805,000, $27,635,000, $24,304,000 and $23,564,000, and marketable securities $2,016,000, $3,430,000, $4,000,000 and $4,217,000, respectively. The liabilities were $14,360,000, $14,222,000, $13,875,000 and $13,252,000, respectively. The accumulated surplus which was $19,475,000 in 1926, $19,475,000 in 1925, $19,475,000 in 1924 and $19,475,000 in 1923.

Further evidence of unsatisfactory conditions in the oil industry, the company's report for 1926 showed that the company had sold 1,000,000 shares of common stock at $1.00 per share, for a total of $1,000,000. The company also sold 1,000,000 shares of preferred stock at $1.00 per share, for a total of $1,000,000.

CORP STOCKS MOST IRREGULAR

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, April 12.—(P)—Stimulated by firmness of public utility and some specialty shares, prices moved higher in the stock market today. Trading was in somewhat reduced volume, approximating a little more than 250,000 shares.

Strength of public utilities was derived from reports of improvement in earnings. While the profits of few individual companies have shown any outstanding increase, the cumulative effect of numerous minor gains has had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment. Northern States Power A is in the forefront of the advance, rising nearly 2 points to 116 1/2, a new high for the year.

Other stocks that were advanced by Pennsylvania-Ohio Edison common and preferred, Midwest utilities and American Gas and Electric moved against the general trend, each showing a marked reduction in volume, but total sales were about the 2,000,000 mark.

Banks called between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000, but the call money rate held steady in the renewal figure of 4 1/2 per cent.

The day's business news was mixed in character. Bullish enthusiasm for the excellent 1926 earnings reports by the Pan-American Petroleum and Sinclair companies, and the maintenance of the Shelly dividend, previously reported in danger. A decrease in the price of export copper and reports that several industrial companies were over-producing, and a small margin of profit were used as ammunition by bear traders.

J. P. King Auction Co.,
 332 Healey Bldg.,
 Atlanta, Ga.
 Gentlemen:

As you doubtless remember, we were somewhat reluctant in signing a contract for the sale of our property in Kirkwood Heights at auction, for we were not thoroughly "sold" on the auction method.

After attending the sale, we cannot refrain from writing to congratulate you on the success of the sale.

It has proven to us that the only way to dispose of property in a hurry is by the auction method and we wish to take this opportunity of thanking you and your organization for the highly satisfactory manner in which our sale was handled.

Yours very truly,
 Kirkwood Heights, Inc.

Weekly Expert Review

BY FRED W. TATTERSALL.

Manchester, England, April 12.—It has been another poor week for practically every branch of the cotton industry. Demand in all quarters has run on odd lots, and it has been impossible to hear of contracts of any importance. The sales are estimated at considerably less than the output, and in the circumstances producers have tended to lose ground. Various reasons are given for the falling off in business, which has taken place during the last few weeks. The troubles in China have had a depressing influence. It is not so much that trade in the East is at a standstill, but buyers for other markets knowing that China is disabled are in the mood to operate cautiously, and strengthening their position, and being difficult to deal with. There is still an expectation of lower values, and it is held that even if raw cotton does not fall sharply, exporters are bound to accept cheaper rates if demand continues slack. Since the beginning of the year, production in spinning and weaving has been on a large scale, and has been a long time back, but it is feared that this better state of affairs will not be maintained for long.

Yarn Prices Weaken

There has been more evidence during the last few days of yarn prices weakening. It is estimated that the sales this week have not been equal to half the production. Deliveries have also fallen off. Once again spinners are producing too much yarn. Isolated cases are being mentioned of mills closing down, and yarn machinery being stopped in other factories. It is expected that the recommendation of the Cotton Yarn association that the mills should stand idle for a week at Easter will be loyally carried out.

Noted Texas Veteran of Civil War Visits Boyhood Home

From a 15-year-old Palmetto, Ga., school student to a major general in the Confederate army during the war between the states and later commander in charge of all the United Confederate Veterans, west of the Mississippi river, is the record of General R. A. Miller, who is visiting relatives here.

General Miller Stopped over in Atlanta

General Miller stopped over in Atlanta for a few days en route to his home in Abilene, Texas, after having attended the annual reunion of the Confederate veterans held last week in Tampa, Fla.

During his stay here General Miller will be the guest of James Riser, at 378 Fourth street, N. E., a nephew and also will spend some time with Kentucky Kelly and other relatives.

He also plans to spend a day in Palmetto, his boyhood home, with a fellow Confederate veteran. They are also planning to visit the home of the one-famous Davis brigade.

In relating the story of his early experiences, General Miller told of how he and four fellow students left the

It is being urged that something should be done to place the yarn contract on a more satisfactory basis. Users who bought freely a couple of months ago are now refusing to take deliveries. In Egyptian yarns a fair amount of business continues to be done, especially in the finer counts and specialties. There has not been much business in export yarns, but some special sales have been arranged in extra hands for the Near East.

Cloth Business.

Cloth manufacturers have dealt with a good deal of inquiry during the past week. Numerous salesmen, however, have complained that buyers have made a very poor response to the quotations given out. It looks as though customers were to keep in touch with Manchester rates, but are not prepared at the moment to place orders. News from China has been awaited with considerable interest. Private cables have not been so alarming as the press messages. Although the auction sales remain suspended in Shanghai some private business is being done there. Even fresh Indian has come through from Hong Kong and Shanghai in fancies and white shirtings. Only a miscellaneous business has been done in India. Shipments at the moment are fairly heavy and clearances in the bazaars are favorable. According to one leading export merchant, it will be at least another month before another buying movement shows itself for India. A few more transactions have been put through for South America, and these have been very welcome after the dull demand for that part of the world for some time back. Only isolated sales have been mentioned for Egypt and the Near East. The Indian colonies and the home trade have given fair support in fine goods and producers of voiles, poplins and cambrics remain busy.

ERIE ROAD REPORTS GROWTH IN REVENUE

New York, April 12.—(P)—The pamphlet report of the Erie railroad for 1926, bearing the signature of John J. Berne, president, successor to F. D. Underwood, shows total revenues of $125,473,500, exceeding those of 1925 by $8,030,048. This increase, the report says, is explained in part by the depleted revenue from the transportation of coal during 1925, due to the strike in the anthracite coal mines and in part to other increased business handled. Net railway operating income was $18,422,724, against $17,308,800 in 1925, an increase of $1,113,924. This was due to an increase in freight revenue of $8,744,492 was transferred from income account to profit and loss account.

There was a decrease in loans and bills payable during the year of $3,570,346.

The road earned $6.71 a share on the common stock, against $6.71 a share the year before, net income having risen to $10,113,393 from $6,729,306.

Total assets increased to $508,196,343 from $500,548,267 at the end of 1925 and profit and loss surplus was $67,659,946 against $62,724,700.

Jesse Livermore Makes Big Coup With Freeport

New York, April 12.—(P)—A sensational stock market coup of $4,000,000 was attributed to Jesse L. Livermore by the New York Times today.

Reports in Wall street from persons who know Livermore in complete confidence, said the Times, were that the coup was made in a cleverly maneuvered pool operation in stock of the Freeport Texas company. The stock yesterday touched 74 1/2, 1 1/2 below its high for all time, reached Saturday. Its low mark was in 1925 and 19 3/8 in 1926. After yesterday's high mark it had a break, closing at 72.

Mr. Livermore is reported to have directed the pool operation, he Times point out that if he had not been dissolved Livermore's fabled profits are still largely on paper and there is yet the possibility of their being reduced.

Freeport Texas company has come to be known as the most interesting speculative issue on the New York stock exchange. It has been a market spectacle for some weeks. Dividend payments on it on an annual basis of $2 was resumed last February. This was recently increased to $4 through the declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1, payable May 2. The company owns sulphur and oil properties and public utilities.
